Claim Soviet Subs Carry Long-Range, Powerful Weapons

LONDON (AP) — The deputy commander of Soviet naval forces said Saturday the Soviet Union now has submarines "capable of dealing powerful blows not only against enemy navies but also against objectives situated on remote enemy territory."

Adm. Arseny G. Golovko, the deputy commander, issued the statement on the eve of the celebration of Soviet navy day. His statement was broadcast by radio Moscow.

The admiral's announcement may have been designed to counter the disclosure that the U.S. Navy last week successfully test-fired two Polaris missiles, which can carry atomic warheads, from the submerged submarine George Washington and hit a target area 1,100 miles away.

Golovko did not specifically claim, however, that the Soviet Union has a new weapon rivaling the U.S. missile.

American naval intelligence has reported the Russians are at work on three or more nuclear submarines and have an unknown number of submarines capable of firing guided, air-breathing missiles with an estimated range of about 350 miles.

Golovko said the advance of Soviet science had enabled his country to equip "the army and navy with the most advanced weapons, including nuclear and rocket weapons."

"The Communist party, its central committee and Comrade Khrushchev are now devoting much attention to raising the combat readiness of the navy," he said.

Submerged Sub Fires 3rd Missile

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — The Navy Saturday successfully fired another Polaris from a submerged submarine in its continuing drive to send the missile to sea as a powerful war deterrent by the end of the year.

Shortly after the launch, it was announced the missile achieved all test objectives in striking a preselected target area 1,100 miles down the Atlantic range. The rocket covered the distance in 14 minutes.

The squat missile was launched from the USS George Washington as the big atomic submarine glided beneath the Gulf Stream about 30 miles off Cape Canaveral. This is the same area from which the submarine successfully unleashed two Polarises in historic first launchings 10 days ago.

Compressed air ejected the 28-foot rocket from one of 16 vertical tubes burrowed in the broad deck of the George Washington. The missile drilled through more than 50 feet of water and popped to the surface a split second after launch. The first-stage engine ignited several feet in the air and the Polaris streaked toward a target area northeast of Puerto Rico.

BRIDAL COUPLES LINE UP

TORONTO (AP) — Bridal couples sometimes have to queue up to be married at St. Agnes Roman Catholic Church on Saturdays. Some Saturdays up to 10 couples are married by the Boston-born Rev. Christopher Difiore. Most of the grooms are Italian immigrant workers who have sent for their fiancees after spending about two years in Canada. Father Difiore performed 300 marriages last year and believes the figure may be a record.

Program Will Differ From Benson Policy

CHICAGO (AP) — Vice President Richard M. Nixon aimed Saturday at a target date of three to four years to bring the nation's vast farm surpluses under control. He said a massive long-range program, including indemnity payments to farmers, is needed to turn the trick.

The Republican presidential nominee said past efforts to deal with surpluses have been too piecemeal. And he added that to attack the problem with the same tools used in the past would only "make the stalemate worse" between the administration and the Congress.

He left no doubt that he would came up with a farm program differing in many respects from the policies backed by Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Taft Benson—a man who was left out of a conference Nixon held with farm representatives Saturday.

"The farmer didn't create and isn't responsible for the box he's standing in," Nixon said. "The government got him to produce more during the war and now must face up the responsibility of getting him out of that situation."

The vice president held a news conference after conferring for nearly four hours with senators, representatives and other political figures from farm states.

He plunged into the farm problem, which he regards as the most difficult domestic issue facing the nation, almost immediately after accepting the presidential nomination Thursday night.

He said Benson wasn't invited because of differences in their views on solution of farm problems.

The vice president made it clear the approach he will take on a farm program: Don't debate the mistakes of the past. Don't run against Benson, but run for the farmer and the country.

Nixon said he had the highest regard and respect for Benson but believes it is essential to "get rid of the rigid position and break the stalemate between the administration and Congress we have had for six to eight years."

Nixon said if elected he plans to pick a man from the Midwest for secretary of agriculture but declined to say who was under consideration.

He said he expects to spell out his farm policies in detail in a major speech in the Midwest probably in September.

Nixon likened the indemnity payments he would give farmers to the payments the government gave war materials contractors after the war ended. They were reimbursed for the extra expense of doing a rush job on producing munitions.

Kennedy, Johnson Plan To Push Multibillion-Dollar Legislation

HYANNIS PORT, Mass. (AP)—Sens. John F. Kennedy and Lyndon B. Johnson, the Democratic presidential and vice presidential nominees, agreed Saturday to press a widescale multibillion - dollar legislative program in the Congress session beginning Aug. 8 and to appeal for bipartisan support for it.

"The American people will be quick to spot obstructionist tactics aimed at keeping us from enacting much of this legislation," Kenedy told a news conference in a statement in which Johnson also joined.

Kennedy and Johnson, who sat up until about 2 a. m. discussing the legislative program and campaign schedules, issued a joint statement.

"There are such key issues already on the calendar as medical care for the aged, housing, aid to education, mutual security appropriations, and minimum wage legislation," they said.

"We intend to devote our full energies to the enactment of this program, and we will leave our principal campaigning until the end of the session.

"We hope to have the cooperation of the Republicans and their candidate in the enactment of this program."

This was a reference to Vice President Richard M. Nixon, presiding officer of the Senate, who has just been nominated by the GOP to succeed Dwight D. Eisenhower as president.

"The short three-week period will not allow for partisanship. The American people will be quick to spot obstructionist tactics aimed at keeping us from enacting much of this legislation," the statement added.

Kennedy expressed confidence that the congressional session, starting with the reconvening of the Senate Aug. 8, would wind up in time for him to visit Hawaii and Alaska before addressing a Labor Day rally in Detroit.

Johnson, commenting on his talks with Kennedy, said: "Nothing happened here in the last 12 hours that is good for the Republican cause, I assure you."

Kennedy and Johnson said at their news conference that they had discussed at length the possibility of a supplementary appropriation for defense, which has been suggested by Democrats as a 'jarring" answer to Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev's rocket threats.

Johnson Formally Launches Campaign At Nashville Rally

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson cut loose with a biting attack on the Republican administration Saturday night and said Vice President Richard M. Nixon would have to campaign on his record.

The Democratic vice-presidential candidate, departing numerous times from his prepared address, attacked the Republicans' farm and foreign policies, and added: "We're going to talk about that record and he can't dodge it."

Johnson pledged himself to a hard-hitting campaign, but he said he would use neither his Southern origin, his Protestant religion, nor any racial prejudice as arguments for luring votes.

"Wherever I may go, I will never speak as a Southerner to Southerners or as a Protestant to Protestants or as a white to whites," the nominee said.

Johnson's speech kicked off a Democratic drive to recapture Tennessee and other Southern states the party lost in 1956.

Virginia, Florida and Kentucky, along with Tennessee went Republican in 1956.

Johnson accused the Eisenhower administration of failing to meet its responsibilities and said the Republican standard-bearers in the election campaign would do no better. His text did not once mention Vice President Richard M. Nixon and Henry Cabot Lodge, the GOP nominees for president and vice president, by name. However, he likened the Republican party to a withering tree.

"America has not been served abroad by the party which Americans themselves have chosen to represent them at home."

Nor, he charged, has the GOP done its job on the home front.

"We are paying a price for this —a price freedom can not afford," he continued. "We are paying it in the erosion of America's effective leadership in the world abroad."

Johnson said former President Herbert Hoover had promised "a chicken in every pot" in an election campaign.

"But the young men with old fears in the Republican party today are afraid to promise the chicken and scared that American families ought not to buy the pot," he said.

Believe Castro Still Top Man In Cuban Scene

HAVANA (AP)—Students of the Cuban scene say Prime Minister Fidel Castro holds most of the high cards in any struggle for power which may develop in revolutionary Cuba.

Rumblings from the ranks have been evident for some time. But it is still Castro's personal popularity which is largely responsible for the mass support of his government.

"The situation could change," said one expert. "But as of today Fidel—well or ailing—is unques-

Expect Ike To Play Limited Role In Nixon Election Drive

CHICAGO (AP) — President Eisenhower apparently is going to play only a limited role in Richard M. Nixon's election drive as the GOP presidential nominee.

Nixon himself has said he expects Eisenhower to make several speeches during the campaign. But there are no present plans for any presidential barnstorming trips such as those undertaken for his party's nominee by then President Harry S. Truman in 1952.

When the President does speak Nixon's associates hope he will not confine himself merely to defending the record of his own administration. They hope he will endorse the liberalized platform put through at the Republican convention last week by the team of Nixon and Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York.

In modified words, that platform calls, among other things, for an accelerated defense program. Eisenhower has been insistent that the present program is adequate. He has opposed speed-up proposals made by Democrats in Congress.

Nixon obviously intends to use Rockefeller extensively if the governor is as willing as he says he is to undertake campaign chores in New York and other states.

Several states already are bidding for Rockefeller appearances. A case in point is Michigan, where the New York governor is calculated to have a special appeal to Democrats and independents whose votes are needed to make possible a Republican victory there.

From the opposite pole of party philosophy, Sen. Barry Goldwater of Arizona will be doing some wide-range campaigning for the ticket.

The vice president's associates think Goldwater, who said school integration can't be enforced under present constitutional provisions, would be helpful to them in the South.

Their specialized plans call for Secretary of the Interior Fred A. Seaton to do some intensive campaigning in the agricultural Midwest. Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Taft Benson, who wasn't invited to Saturday's farm conference, does not figure in their campaign plans.

In the Pacific Coast area, the star performer may be Gov. Mark O. Hatfield of Oregon. He made a good impression in convention appearances and Nixon's associates like the youthful accent he gives to the Republican cause.

Seek Killer Of Teacher Found In Lover's Lane

YORKTOWN HEIGHTS, N. Y. (AP)—State police searched rain-soaked Westchester County for a lead to the killer of red-haired Carole Segretta, 24, of Troy, a pretty teacher found shot to death Saturday in a lovers' trysting place. place.

There was no immediate explanation of how she met, or why she was with, a tall, slender man who was seen with her blood-stained body, apparently moments after four shots were fired into her head and neck. The motorist who saw him spotted a pistol butt protuding from one pocket.

Police broadcast an alarm for the man, described as at least 6 feet tall, 140 pounds, wearing glasses, dark clothes and a fedora hat.

The motorist, Wallace Tompkins, a Yorktown Heights garage owner, said the man was in his middle 20s.

Tompkins was driving on Route 129, near the road's intersection with the Taconic Parkway, when he saw the man lifting the girl's body into the car. He slowed to investigate, then saw the gun and raced to the nearest telephone to warn police.

When state troopers arrived they found blood still streaming from the girl's wounds, which were marked by powder burns. The thin man was gone.

WARN AGAINST SWINDLERS DRESSED AS PRIESTS

MUNICH, Germany (AP)—Munich police Saturday warned pilgrims attending the 37th International Eucharistic Congress against swindlers wearing priestly garments. Police said several such persons were selling "tickets" for the final congress celebrations Aug. 7 and congress badges to be worn by pilgrims. Actually, the final event and the badges are free.

Find Strangled Body Of Girl, 5, In Shallow Hole Near Her Home

WHEELING, Ill. (AP) — The strangled body of 5-year-old Betsy Benham was found Saturday under a covering of mud and weeds in a shallow hole less than a block from her home.

Coroner Walter E. McCarron of Cook County said an autopsy showed cause of death was "definitely strangulation."

The coroner said there were definite signs the child had been molested, but he said it probably would not be known from further studies until Monday whether the child had been raped.

Betsy disappeared from the yard of her home about 7:30 p.m. (CDT) Friday.

"Betsy was playing 'dress up' and I was working in the yard on a motorcycle," Benham said.

"She was wearing a blouse and a yellow skirt. And she had a sort of veil — she called it a bridal veil — over her head."

The girl's body was discovered Saturday morning during a search by police, sheriff's officers and volunteers.

McCarron said the autopsy showed the child had died within an hour after having dinner Friday night.

James Naber, 15, of Wheeling Township, a member of the search party, summoned police to the spot.

George Howlett, chief of the sheriff's police, said Naber told him he was directed to the body by a man whom he described as about 35, with crew-cut hair and wearing a blue shirt.

Howlett said the boy quoted the stranger as saying, 'Tell the others to stay back; there's a body in the hole. We better call the police."

Naber said he saw the girl's leg protruding through the leaves and dirt, and then ran in search of police.

Authorities began a search for the man described by Naber. Howlett said he wondered why the man himself had not summoned authorities to the spot and why the man was not there when investigators arrived.

The hole in which the girl was found was a few feet from a little-used path in a field, which once was a truck farm.

Investigators were informed the shallow pit, 5 feet long and 3 feet wide, was dug three weeks ago by neighborhood children as a make-believe cave.

Congolese Urge U.N. Move Into Katanga Province

LEOPOLDVILLE, the Congo (AP)—U. N. Secretary General Dag Hammarskjold was reported Saturday to be meeting resistance from some of the Congo's leaders in his plan to move cautiously in settling the disordered affairs of this young nation.

Several ministers are insisting that U. N. forces move immediately into Katanga Province, which has declared its independence, to expel Belgian forces maintaining order there.

The U. N. view is that such precipitate action could only damage the country's future. Premier Moise Tshombe of Katanga has told U. N. forces to stay out of the rich province.

The secretary general held two sessions with a restricted group of leaders in an effort to work out some agreement on the way to save the month-old republic.

Both U. N. and government officials were close-mouthed about the progress being made. But it was generally believed that the veteran U. N. diplomat had pulled no punches in telling the Cabinet how the massive U. N. effort here should be conducted.

The formation of a restricted commission of six Congolese members to deal with the problem announced in a communique was believed to be one result of his firm stand.

A U. N. spokesman said the commission will decide with Hammarskjold and Ralph J. Bunche, U. N. undersecretary, what type of organization is required for the U. N. operation. Premier Patrice Lumumba, who is on a mission seeking U. S. and Canadian aid, is a commission member.

CENSUS REPORT SHOWS COUNTY POPULATION DROP

WASHINGTON (AP) — More than half the nation's counties lost population in the 1950s, the Census Bureau reported Saturday.

Although the census showed an overall population growth of 28 million in the United States, 1,580 of the 3,072 counties lost inhabitants and only 1,492 grew in population.

Just about the same trend was shown in the 1950 census. Of the then 3,070 counties, 1,516 had lost population in the previous decade and in spite of a national population increase of more than 19 million.

The showing by states included:

	No. of counties	Gained	Lost
Illinois	102	51	51
Indiana	92	73	19
Iowa	99	37	62
Missouri	114	28	86
Wisconsin	71	31	40

Rhee's Foes Win Korean Election But Face Revolt

SEOUL (AP) — The moderate Democrats, landslide winners in South Korea's freest election, were threatened Sunday with a revolt against leader John M. Chang's bid for the prime ministry.

Running on their record of struggle against ousted President Syngman Rhee, the Democratic party was handed a mandate in parliamentary elections to rule virtually as it pleased for the next four years. The question of the hour was: Who will do the ruling?

As titular head of the Democrats, Chang, 60, former ambassador to Washington, was challenged by a faction led by Yoon Bo-sung, 62, Scotland-educated conservative. Yoon said his group recognizes no claim by Chang and will insist the prime minister be designated by a poll of House Democrats. The two factions each won about the same number of seats.

Chang said party discipline should prevail. Yoon retorted that "if Chang were more broad-minded toward our faction, we might support him, but he has not treated us fairly."

Either faction could gain the upper hand by getting a majority of the independents, the second most numerous bloc in the new House of Representatives. United, the party easily had the votes to carry out its platform pledges to put South Korea's economic house in order.

Storm Carrying Heavy Rain, Wind Hits East Coast

NEW YORK (AP) — Tropical storm Brenda sloshed and buffeted its way up the East Coast Saturday carrying heavy rains, lashing winds and some thunder and lightning.

The storm swept the Middle Atlantic states, pushed across New York, and plunged deep into New England, moving at a steady 30 miles per hour. Little damage was reported.

Brenda's chief effect was rain, massive doses of it. But high tides and heavy seas forced gale warnings to be hoisted from Hatteras, N. C., to Eastport, Maine. Three ships were in dangerous situations during the stormy Friday night. Dozens of yachts were threatened at their moorings.

At least one traffic death was blamed on the storm.

As Brenda thumped the Atlantic coast, a squall line with heavy rains and winds up to 100 m.p.h. rolled across a Midwest area from Michigan to Oklahoma.

Brenda forced President Eisenhower, in Denver, to postpone departure for his Newport, R. I. vacation retreat for 24 hours. The President and Mrs. Eisenhower had planned to leave by jet Saturday morning.

Winds hit up to 62 m. p. h. in gusts in New York City. One to six inches of rainfall flooded many coast sections. At Tampa, Fla., 13.92 inches of rain was reported.

Mother Of U2 Pilot Seeks Visa To Go To Moscow

WASHINGTON (AP)—The ailing mother of U2 pilot Francis Gary Powers has joined the flier's father and wife in planning to go to the Soviet Union for her son's spy trial next month if Moscow will allow it.

So far, only the father, Oliver Powers of Pound, Va., has been granted the necessary visa and he has not disclosed when he will go.

An attorney said Saturday he feels he is being "purposely put off" by the Russians in his efforts to obtain visas for the wife and three attorneys who want to help defend Powers. The wife also expressed anew her feeling that the State Department is not doing enough in her husband's behalf.

Powers, 30, was shot down in the U.S.S.R. May 1 and is to go on trial Aug. 16 on espionage

Prices Of Farm Goods Rise After Decline Of Two Months

WASHINGTON (AP) — After two consecutive months of decline, prices of farm goods have gone up again.

The agriculture department says prices climbed .8 per cent between mid-June and mid-July.

Seasonally higher prices for dairy products led the advance, helped by price boosts for vegetables, cotton, hogs and potatoes. Prices dropped for cattle, peaches and wheat.

Politicians as well as the farmers are keeping a sharp eye on farm prices as election day approaches. Republicans could point with pride to the price rise, but the department's report also contained some statistics that the Democrats could view with alarm.

The mid-July average farm price of 80 per cent of parity, for instance, was below the 81 per cent of a year ago and the record 123 per cent of October, 1946. Parity is a price said by law to be fair to farmers in terms of their costs.

Prospects for a farm bill fight in the post-convention congressional session were raised by an announcement by Chairman Harold D. Cooley (D-NC) of the House Agriculture Committee.

Cooley, a critic of Eisenhower administration farm policies, called top committee members to a meeting here Aug. 12 — three days before the House reconvenes —to "study the possibilities of emergency legislation to raise farm income immediately."

He said the congressmen also will "review prospects for enactment of a general long-range farm bill at the earliest possible time in the new congress which convenes in January."

A spokesman for the Democratic National Committee, said a farm study group has made recommendations to the Democratic presidential nominee — John F. Kennedy—on possible farm legislative proposals for the post-con-

Implement Co. At Ashland Is Gutted By Fire

ASHLAND — Fire, of undetermined origin, gutted the interior of the Ashland Implement Co. Tuesday night about 8:30 p.m. The fire was confined to the interior of the building and roof. The Ashland Implement Co. is owned and operated by J. T. Smothers of Greenview. His intentions are to reopen in the future.

When the firemen received the call and arrived at the scene, smoke and flames were just beginning to break through the roof. It apparently had smoldered for several hours. Employees at the building had left about 5:30 p.m.

Firemen had the blaze under control in a short time, but damage to the building was extensive. Firemen were hampered by onlookers who crowded too close to the scene.

SWEETIE PIE By Nadine Seltzer

In Hollywood

By JAMES BACON
AP Movie-TV Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Shirley Jones, who fought for years to shed a sweet heroine label, now has another fight.

"Ever since I played a prostitute in 'Elmer Gantry' " she says, "I get nothing but bad girl scripts. At the moment, I've been offered roles as a prostitute, nymphomaniac and an alcoholic.

"Producers, I guess, can only see you in your last role."

Shirley started as the heroine of "Oklahoma" and "Carousel." Both were blockbuster pictures and Shirley, onetime choir singer from Smithton, Pa., was perfect casting.

Then followed a succession of good girl roles. Shirley, knowing that in this day of movie realism the good girl label meant career suicide, turned to television and night clubs.

On a Playhouse 90, she played an alcoholic. She and husband Jack Cassidy came up with a sophisticated night club act that stressed Shirley's sex appeal.

Burt Lancaster saw her as the alcoholic on television and put the performance in the back of his head. When he cast "Elmer Gantry," he called Shirley. In it she plays the daughter of a theological school dean seduced by Elmer Gantry the student.

Later as the sawdust revivialist smashing houses of ill repute, he finds Shirley as an inmate. It was a good role, and Shirley scored with it.

She's also co-starred with Cantinflas in "Pepe" and does a modern ballet that burns up the screen.

HOLLYWOOD (AP — Desilu, Inc., recently had a stockholders meeting and Lucille Ball, in a gesture of good will, invited all the stockholders to watch her and Bob Hope film the movie Facts of Life."

"There were only about 100 stockholders at the meeting," says Director Norman Panama, "but we have had thousands of set visitors. Evidently the word got around town and now the tourists come up to the gate and say: 'Desilu stockholder.' Nothing we can do but let them in."

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—A producer swears his wife told him this after the recent death of an industry figure:

"Darling, I don't know what I would do if anything happened to you. I don't think I could go on living—unless it would be in the south of France."

HOLLYWOOD (AP)— Hollywood vignette. For years, Sig Rogell, No. 2 man to the late Buddy Adler at 20th Century-Fox, has been playing golf with Spyros Skouras, president of the studio.

Skouras always won. This week, Skouras named Robert Goldstein, head of European operations, to take Adler's place.

France Rewards Girl's Stand Against Nazis

Dancer Wears Legion Of Honor Knight's Ribbon

By ROSETTE HARGROVE
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

But France has called her front and center more than once to take a special bow. She has been presented with the Croix de Guerre with bronze palm and more than a half dozen other war decorations.

You see, there's much more to Lydia than meets the eye. There's a story of heroism performed by a teen-age girl in the face of Gestapo torture and concentration camp life. That story cannot be seen under the lights at the Folies Bergere.

LYDIA DE LIPSKI, 15, returned to France from Poland in 1939 at the outbreak of World War II, her mother and younger brother having been trapped in Warsaw. She never saw them again.

Her father organized a resistance group. Lydia was secretary.

Lydia, who acted as courier for her father, took the Resistance name of "Cipenka" (little chicken) in Polish. She and her father were betrayed in 1941 by a Mathilde Carre, who eventually became known as "The Cat."

Lydia was tortured for several months but remained silent, never revealing the names of Resistance group members or their activities against Nazi occupation forces.

Sent to the concentration camp at Ravensbruk as a "political deportee," (a capital "crime"), Lydia spent three years there.

IN APRIL, 1945, she was beaten and her head shaved for "insubordination." Lydia was thrown into the death cell but escaped with her life in a prisoner exchange engineered by the Swedish Red Cross.

She joined Gen. Charles de Gaulle's army in the fall of 1945 and served for several years.

Her father also survived three years in a concentration camp. The woman who "mothered" Lydia at Ravensbruk, Tusia Winkowska, found out only last year that the girl was alive and sent her a letter from Saginaw, Mich.

BUT THE MOST wonderful surprise, says Lydia, was a phone call she received last Christmas from two Polish flyers whom she met in 1939.

They, along with four others, spent their last day in France with the Lipski family before joining Britain's Royal Air Force. They "shared" a photograph Lydia had given them, splitting six pieces to be matched up after the war. Four of those pieces will not be fitted.

Although the war has been over for more than 15 years, France, too, still remembers the courageous teen-ager, a descendant of a great Polish family which can trace its ancestry back to the kings of Hungary in the 12th century. Lydia Lipski, now Lova, recently was made a Knight of the Legion of Honor. She's the only dancer who can claim that distinction.

RING FOUND AGAIN

ETNA, Maine (AP)— In the 55 years Mrs. Leighton S. Sylvester has been married, her wedding ring has been lost more than 50.

She first lost it less than two years after her marriage while digging in her garden. Twenty years later her husband found the ring. Less than two years it was lost again.

Now, the ring is back in Mrs. Sylvester's possession once more. A tenant on the farm the Sylvesters formerly owned dug it up.

THE HANDOUT SET

BALTIMORE (AP)— As Lee Poist, a soft drink supervisor, sat in a truck the other day, a man approached and asked him for money.

To teach the man a lesson, Poist thought, he poured out his own sob story about how tough things were financially. Then he gasped as the panhandler pulled out a roll of $17 and peeled off $1 for Poist.

Poist says he'll keep it for life.

A Problem In Every Port

This Navy Trouble Shooter Checks Her Checks

By Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

She has multitudes of dependents scattered around the world an dher whole working day is spent in keeping track of them and their problems.

To Lucy DiVincenzo these peopleall U.S. Navy dependents—are not merely names and statistics on a file card; they are persons faced with problems which she can help solve.

Miss DiVicenzo is contact representative at the Navy Finance Center, Cleveland, Ohio. As such she sees to it that Navy dependents—wives and children of seamen — receive their allotment checks on time no matter where in the world the families are located.

MOST OF LUCY'S work has to do with missing checks. A Navy family in Italy, others on Formosa, in Japan or Guam are without funds because their allotment checks have not arrived. This can be a real crisis for Americans in foreign lands.

The dependents depend on Lucy to get them off the hook. The "why" of the missing check, whether the Navy's fault or their own, is secondary. The financial emergency is met first, and Lucy brings 10 years of know-how to bear.

THE HURRY-UP, "help us" appeals to Lucy may be letter, telegram or phone call. Sometimes they snow under Lucy's desk at a 125-a-week rate. Some messages are irate in tone, others pathetic.

Lucy DiVincenzo

Mrs. Jones, wife of Able Seaman Joe Jones, for instance, wants to know what's holding up the monthly check and why can't the Navy be a little more efficient? After all, it's only one little old check due the tenth of each month in her cottage mailbox just off the Navy base in Guam. To this Lucy replies with a soft answer that "turneth away wrath."

Toward those with more critical problems Lucy takes a more direct, sympathetic approach. She puts herself in the place of Mrs. Willoughby in far-off Okinawa, whose rent is due, and understands why this Navy wife is upset.

Lucy moves swiftly, using the facilities of either the Red Cross or Navy relief, to lend a helping hand.

"AT TIMES the distress cases pile up," Lucy says, "until I feel upset myself."

According to her co-workers, however, Lucy's tact and sympathy never wear thin, though in some instances this could be understandable.

Neither Lucy nor the Navy can understand why the Mrs. Smiths of the Navy move from one address to another without notifying the allotment division where to send the next check.

"They seem to put their faith in some special sort of providence; either the check will follow them automatically or the Post Office will track them down — somehow. But it's the Navy tracing system which finally puts that check where it should be."

How does Lucy repair nerves shattered by days spent listening to complaints and calming the tearful? She "rests up" for the next day in the cheerful atmosphere of her family home where a sister, seven brothers and an assortment of nieces and nephews make frequent and welcome calls.

Along Came Jones—

Redcap Has His Own 'Who's Who'

By JOSEPH E. DABNEY
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

FLORENCE, S.C. — (NEA) — Along came Jones to remind the world of this thriving community of 35,000.

He's James Jones, a redcap at the Atlantic Coast Line railroad station here for 32 years—with a passion for collecting autographs.

Heads of state, motion picture stars and other prominent personalities are more likely to remember this community for Jones' enterprise as unofficial "city greeter" than for almost any other reason.

For if they do not come by train, Jones is just as likely to rush down to the bus terminal or the airport to record their signatures for posterity.

His most recent additions were the Misses Germany, Luxembourg, Denmark and Thailand who were on their way to the "Miss Universe" contest in Miami, Fla.

But these signatures might pale in comparison with those of Franklin Delano Roosevelt, President Eisenhower, Bernard Baruch, Babe Ruth, Jack Dempsey, Billy Graham, Clark Gable and a host of European chieftains of today and yesterday.

Jones has completed his 300th book, a collection which includes some 17,000 autographs.

The first name he got was that of humorist Will Rogers. Jones, then a telegraph runner, delivered a wire to Rogers' hotel room. Rogers told him that:

"Every boy should have a hobby. Take this time and go out and get yourself an autograph book."

Jones did and Rogers wrote: "Each time we make a friend, we grow a little. Will Rogers."

A dime also was given him by the John D. Rockefeller Sr. who autographed his book with "save your money." But Jones was momentarily less fortunate with another multi-millionaire, John Pierpont Morgan.

"I'm kind of particular about signing my name. Who are you anyway?" He was told and Jones got his autograph.

* * *

The pages of his books read like a brief synopsis of the last four decades. Herbert Hoover, FDR, Harry S. Truman and Ike have all signed. Jones probably has the signature of the next president, too. Both Sen. John F. Kennedy and Vice President Richard M. Nixon are in the book.

When Jones is not working as redcap and autograph hound, he's collecting money for the National Foundation. In his one-man crusade over 22 years, he personally has raised nearly $133,000 for the kitty, adding $8,200 during his last vacation in January.

He's so popular that when the railroad tried to abolish the redcap job in 1958, local pressure forced the ACL to reconsider. A week later, James was back at his old post.

That's the story of 50-year-old James Jones. But he would like to add a footnote. Would Dr. Norman Vincent Peale please find his way to Florence?

That's the signaure he wants most.

Oh, yes. And there's also Jack Paar and Nikita Khrushchev. That would about complete Jones' collection until somebody else became famous enough to be added to the redcap's personal "Who's Who."

ROSE FOR RENT

As the descendant in line it came to him for his great-great-great grandfather, Baron Henry William Stiegel, founder of the town of Manheim, Pa. The Baron deeded property for a church with the stipulation that the rent would be a red rose annually, payable in June forever.

BROOMS FOR POLICE?

I dash upstairs, and then forget what for.

My mind has always been a bit erratic,
But nothing that concerned me, goodness knows,
Until I found I'd set the automatic
And then forgot to add the dirty clothes.

ON-THE-HOOF TESTING

ITHACA, N.Y. (AP)—A professor of agriculture says he has developed a way to hear how good a steak is while it is still on the hoof.

Prof. J. R. Stouffer of the New York State College of Agriculture at Cornell University bounces high frequency sound waves off the layers of fat and muscle on live animals.

This device, he says, will help livestock producers select steers, hogs and sheep for breeding.

Applebees' Home From Behind Iron Curtain

Dr. and Mrs. A. B. Applebee have returned from the International Real Estate Federation recently held in Salzburg, Austria. Following the convention where 26 different countries were represented, some 60 delegates from the United State visited Vienna, Warsaw, Prague, Moscow and Leningrad. From Russia they went on to Helsinki where the group was entertained by the Finnish Realtors Association.

In the cities of Stockholm, Copenhagen, Amsterdam, Dublin and London they were interviewed at the American Embassies and briefed on the economic and political situations in the respective countries.

July 4 In Moscow

On July 4th the Ambassador in Moscow held an open house with all the dignitaries from the Russian government as well as the ambassadors from all the foreign governments as guests. There were over 2,000 in attendance including any Americans that were in Moscow at the time.

Government Owned

In Czechoslovakia the Applebee's visited a friend who lives in a small town up in Bohemia and since they were there ten years ago, the real estate and business belonging to this friend has been taken over by the government without payment, and it is now a Nationalized store. The man and wife are allowed $21, each per month to live on in exchange for his business and buildings.

Over 90 per cent of the farms have been taken over and are now collectiveised with every farmer working for the state.

No 'Bargains'

Another way in which economic change becomes directly and personally apparent is in the prices of most goods and services which visitors to these countries buy. A few years ago Americans boasted of the "bargains" they purchased on visits in Europe, but not now. They find prices as high or higher than in our country.

This is hard to understand when we observe standards of living generally lower than ours and wages relatively low in terms of dollars.

There are two explanations for this: (1) production inefficiencies by lack of mechanization and (2) high social security and other taxes that tend to equalize costs with ours at the same time they contribute to labors lower productivity.

Complete List—

Jacksonville Streets Scheduled For Repairs During Current Year

Jacksonville's many miles of streets will take on a new look sometime before cold weather arrives if the weather man cooperates with street department employees. Alderman Joe Grojean, chairman of the highway committee, compiled a complete list of city streets scheduled for repairs during the current year.

Grojean pointed out that the complete list has been approved by the full city council and indicated repairs will be made. "Any changes are out of the question," Grojean stated.

Cost of the materials needed to repair the city's streets is estimated at $28,383 on the non-arterial streets. The entire cost is paid from the city's general fund without help from motor fuel tax revenue.

Arterial streets, listed at the end of this article, are scheduled for repairs within the next two weeks. Final approval for various repairs requested will be made within this period and work will be started as soon as the state approves the request.

Estimated cost of the arterial street repairs ranges as high as $50,000, to be paid from motor fuel tax revenue.

City streets are in worse shape this year than they have been for the past several years, according to city officials.

Requests have been made by residents to all councilmen and other city officials for the past two months concerning progress of anticipated street repairs.

All listings are by wards, except for arterial streets which are grouped at the end of this article. Indicated repairs are listed. Several streets within the city are already completed and do not appear.

Repairs, indicating "shape and seal" include grading, light oil, asphalt and rock chips, about 3 miles; "shape and oil," grade and oil (no gravel), about 10 miles; "patch and seal," asphalt and rock chips or pouring cracks, about 5 miles.

Cost per mile: shape and seal, $2,500; shape and oil, $1,000; patch and seal, $1,500.

FORGETFUL YOUTH

SPRINGFIELD, Mass. (AP)—Daniel J. Murphy Jr., manager of the district Social Security Office, says a lot of young people have poor memories when applying for a Social Security card.

A common shortcoming, he says, is not remembering their mother's maiden name—or the date of their birth.

REBEL SAFE GIVEN

RICHMOND, Va. (AP)—A Confederate safe which has been gathering dust in the basement of the Richmond postoffice has been turned over to the United Daughters of the Confederacy which will exhibit it at the headquarters here. Postmaster Fergus McRee says he doesn't know the age of the safe, which weighs about a ton, but assumes it has been in the postoffice since before the Civil War.

TRAIN'S VOICE CHANGES

LONG BRANCH, N.J. (AP)—The Pennsylvania Railroad's shore commuter run has reached its adolescence. Its voice is changing.

The switch has two objectives, a railroad spokesman says—to boost safety and to pacify nerve-wracked residents who claim the old horns sounded like the bellows of a wounded rhinoceros.

Cattle Feeders To Tour Southern States

CARROLLTON— The Agriculture Extension Councils of both Greene and Jersey counties have joined forces to sponsor a cattle tour to the states of Tennessee and Mississippi and plans have been made to leave Carrollton early the morning of Aug. 7 for Springfield, Tenn., where the group will spend the night. The tour will start Aug. 8 when the livestock extension specialist from the University of Tennessee will conduct the tour at the various ranches in the area and an overnight will be at Camden. The tour will continue through Aug. 9 with an overnight stap in Memphis. The Mississippi tour will start at Hernando and an all night stay will be made both at Jackson and West Point or Tupelo. Miss. The tour in Mississippi will be conducted by the extension service of the Mississippi State University and will close after a visit to ranches on Aug. 11.

Reservations must be made for this tour in either Greene or Jersey counties and reservations will be taken on a first come first served basis until Aug. 5. A 20 dollar deposit is necessary to hold reservations. If one person is making reservations for a carload all names should be submitted. Transportation will be by automobile and persons who can take their car are asked to so specify as they make reservations. The approximate cost will be between $60 and $75 per person on tour.

A meeting for those going on tour will be held Aug. 5 at 8 p.m. in the offices of the Greene County Service Company at which time last minute details will be explained.

The trip is being made that feeders might have a better understanding of the production and management problems of the producer of calves and replacement cattle. Contacts can also be made for the purchase of calves.

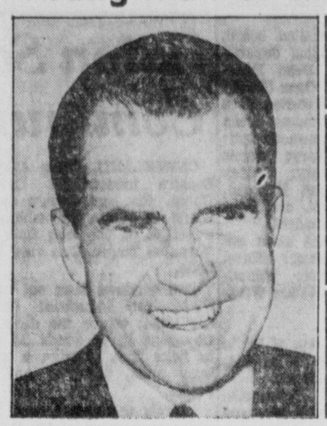
Young Man of the Grand Old Party (1)

By Walter Coyne and Ralph Lane



To give young Richard, a junior in high school, self-sufficiency and a chance to earn pocket money, Frank Nixon gave his son complete charge of the vegetable counter in the family store.

It was the bottom of the Great Depression when Richard arrived at Duke University in 1934. To augment his family's $35-a-month allowance, he worked in the school library for 35 cents an hour.

Richard Milhous Nixon, descended of pioneer American stock on both sides, was born January 9, 1913, in a two-storied frame house built on a hill overlooking a lemon orchard in Yorba Linda, Calif. He spent a frugal boyhood in Whittier, Calif., where he attended high school and Whittier College ('34), a local Quaker institution. He took his Duke University law degree back to Whittier where he practiced till just after the outbreak of World War II. In 1942 he got a job with the Office of Price Administration which took him and Pat to the city of his future—Washington, D.C.

MAPLE SEEDS FROM SPACE—A new idea for recovering space capsules is under study by the Air Force. Helicopterlike rotary wings, working much like a spinning maple seed, are proposed to slow and guide the descent of missiles and other space vehicles. Photo, left, shows a forerunner of the idea which has been tested in more than 1,500 air drops by Kaman Aircraft Corp. Called Rotochute, it consists of a pod capable of floating about 200 pounds of cargo to the ground. Two rotor blades are attached to the hub. A spring snaps the blades from the folded position and gravity and air pressure combine to make them spin. Drawing, right, shows how the Rotochute might work with a space capsule as it re-enters the atmosphere.

Cincinnati Sells Don Newcombe To Cleveland

CINCINNATI (AP) — The Cincinnati Reds Friday night announced they had sold the contract of veteran pitcher Don Newcombe to the Cleveland Indians.

Gabe Paul, Redleg general manager, said the big right-hander was sold for cash and that Cleveland would transfer the option of Carl Thomas, right-handed pitcher from Indianpolis of the American Assn. to Nashville, Tenn., of the Southern Assn.

Newcombe has a 4-6 record for the year.

The sale of Newcombe to the American League club meant that every club in the National League waived on the big pitcher who had a big hand in winning pennants for the old Brooklyn Dodgers in 1949, 1955 and 1956. Newcombe was in military service when the Dodgers won pennants in 1952 and 1953.

He won 27 games with the Dodgers in 1956 but that was his last great year in the National League. He was voted the league's most valuable player that year.

He had only an 11-12 mark in 1957 and in 1958 he had a 7-13 mark with the Los Angeles Dodgers and the Reds.

Last year, he showed signs of returning to fine form again and had a 13-8 mark.

A groin injury in spring training slowed his start this year and never hit winning form. He pitched only one complete game in 15 starts and he lost that.

Nikita's Capitalist Friend

Eaton Says Learn To Live With Communism, It's Here To Stay

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP)—Millionaire industrialist Cyrus S. Eaton, the best known capitalist friend of Nikita Khrushchev, has an office on the 36th floor of the Terminal Tower. The view is symbolic.

Two windows look out over the Flats, the industrial heart of Cleveland, where the dirty brown Cuyahoga River winds its way into Lake Erie through a maze of busy mills, factories and power plants.

There's the spot where Eaton's idol and mentor, John D. Rockefeller, founded Standard Oil; there is Republic Steel, the corporate giant pieced together by Eaton and lost during the depression.

Each is a living fragment of Eaton's industrial empire.

"It's terrifying to think that one bomb could wipe out all this," he tells a visitor. "I don't want to see all this destroyed."

Eaton, a sprightly 76 with a half century of rugged capitalistic infighting behind him, has his own suggestions on how to avoid such a calamity.

Many of his views are unpopular and controversial. He believes:

——The Soviet Union wants to end the cold war. When Khrushchev says he would "rather spend money on better homes, schools and industry than armaments, I believe him."

——"Powerful influences" in the United States, particularly the Pentagon and the Atomic Energy Commission, must shoulder much of the responsibility for the cold war.

——Private enterprise is vastly preferable to communism for the United States but "we can't destroy communism; it's here to stay," so let's learn to live with it.

His ideas — and his outspoken exposition of them—have brought him such diverse rewards as a Lenin Peace Prize from the Soviet government and a subpoena from the U.S. House Un-American Activities Committee.

Eaton, a hard-headed businessman with a Midas touch, doesn't think of himself as a starry idealist. With him, peace and co-existence are simply matters of cold logic. His frequent speeches and interviews are salted with such phrases as:

"One thing you can say about capitalists is that they want to make a profit. There is not much to gain if the United States spends 50 billion dollars a year on armaments which ultimately will only blow us all up.

"Mass destruction is in discordance with the ethical sense of the world, and to incite and promote the destruction of all our skyscrapers and magnificent industrial enterprises doesn't make sense.

"In a world where you have to eat three times a day, an application to material things is mankind's first job and destiny. After all, what the world pays most attention to is success. It may be a hard thing to say, but it's one of the cold facts of life."

Eaton's fears—the word "terrifying" pops up frequently in his conversation—and his preoccupation with nuclear destruction, date from July, 1957, when he played host to a conference of nuclear scientists, some of them from Communist lands, at his ancestral home in Pugwash, N.S.

In December of the same year, he married Mrs. Anne Kinder Jones, a vivacious red-haired divorcee half his age. The new Mrs. Eaton, once a teacher of general semantics at Cleveland College and something of an idealist, shares her husband's views down to the last comma and period.

The Eatons have visited Khrushchev in Moscow and have toured other countries behind the Iron Curtain. He prefers to call them "Socialist states," not Communist, not satellites. In turn, the Eatons have entertained Soviet Deputy Premier Anastas Mikoyan at their farm in Northfield, Ohio.

Is it possible that the Eatons are being taken in by the Soviets; that they're being used as tools?

"I've been around a long time," says Eaton coldly. "Time makes some things plain. I think I know a phony when I see one."

"There's no brain living that could use Cyrus Eaton as a tool," bristles Mrs. Eaton. "I can't imagine anyone taking him in. Can you?"

In the field of business, at least, it is a rare person who has taken Cyrus Eaton.

Before he began to dabble in international affairs, Eaton was distinguished primarily for his ability to acquire (1) money in large amounts (2) business enemies in considerable numbers and (3) friendships that cut across all social strata.

Starting from scratch, he was worth a million dollars at 27; a hundred million at 48. His empire crumbled in '29 but, with characteristic dedication, he fashioned a new one out of the pieces. His holdings now are estimated at two billion dollars.

He was a lad of 23 when his boss, John D. Rockefeller Sr., sent him to Western Canada to build a power plant. He lost his backers in the panic of 1907 so he borrowed money and built the plant himself. Then he sold it at a profit and was on his way.

Twenty years later he still was gambling when he bought control of a shaky Trumbull Steel Co. with a personal check for 18 million dollars and, through mergers and acquisitions, turned it into Republic Steel, third largest in the country.

And, at 60, he gambled on boring a 2,000-foot tunnel through rock to drain 60-square mile Steep Rock Lake and get at the iron deposits beneath its surface. He won.

His friends are a mixed group. Among them he numbers educator Robert Hutchins, labor leader John L. Lewis, philosopher Bertrand Russell and scientist Julian Huxley. He prefers philosophers to businessmen. He has little use for politicians or military leaders.

"The politician is a very pliable man," he says. "He cannot stand up against public clamor. Military men? There never again can be a military hero. He'll have to drop A or H bombs on defenseless women and children. He'll be a human monster."

Stanford University Is Invading Europe

Editor's Note — Stanford University used to be in California. It still is. But it now has a campus in Germany, will open two more in Italy and France and possibly others in Japan and Hong Kong. Eventually one-third of the graduates of this university on the move will have attended classes overseas.

By LEIF ERICKSON

STANFORD, Calif. (AP) — Europe is being invaded again, this time by Stanford University.

Stanford has established a campus near Stuttgart, Germany, and is planning other bridgeheads in France and Italy. The original contingent of Stanford students is expected to expand until eventually one-third of the university's graduates will do some of their studying abroad.

Their objective: Reading, writing and rapport.

The French word precisely describes the warm feeling of the Stanford study center's select group of 68 students for each other, for their teachers, and for the grape-growing villagers near Stuttgart.

A special award was conferred at Stanford's last commencement on Prof. Friedrich Wilhelm Strothmann, modern language department chief who conceived the Stanford-in-Germany plan.

The plan's notable achievement is giving selected students two quarters of study abroad at the same cost as normal home campus charges for tuition and room and board. The only extra cost a student pays is his return passage via chartered plane, about half the regular airline fare.

The overseas program started in Germany in June, 1958, will be expanded in September, with new Stanford campuses at Tours, France, and Florence, Italy for 80 more Stanford undergraduates.

In a very few years, one-third of each Stanford graduating class will have studied abroad under the overseas program.

Geri Wilder, 22, of North Hollywood, Calif., who recently returned from her two quarters of study at Stuttgart, evaluated her experience with a personal definition of rapport:

"In such a small group-studying, living and traveling together —you get to know people better than you ever did before. And you like them the way they are, without wanting to change them."

The men and women winning European campus assignments represent a scholastic creme de la creme because competition for the 228 openings is intense.

The Stuttgart groups cram their studying and classes into four day weeks so they can have three-day weekends for exploring Europe.

"They can hop on a motorcycle Thursday afternoon and come back Sunday from Venice and Salzburg after seeing an opera or maybe a puppet play," said Strothmann.

Stanford-In-Germany is located on a 30-acre estate overlooking Beutelsbach, 12 miles outside Stuttgart.

Stanford-in-France will operate in a newly completed building in a cultural center being developed jointly by the University of Poitiers and the city of Tours, 145 miles from Paris.

GROUNDED SPACE MAN

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP)— The official title of Bill Armstrong's job with the State of Florida is "space expediter." But he doesn't have a thing to do with the missile space probing program at Cape Canavaral.

His job is to determine what agencies occupy what space in the state's jam-packed office buildings. If an agency needs more room, it tells Armstrong, and he expedites getting it.

FALSE ALARM

MILWAUKEE (AP)— A woman telephoned police that she feared a friend with whom she had been talking on the telephone had collapsed. She asked that a squad car be sent to investigate.

When officers arrived they found the woman talking again on the telephone.

Her explanation: She suddenly remembered she had forgotten to turn off her washing machine, and in the midst of her conversation had dropped the telephone and ran to the basement.

New York Stock Market

By ED MORSE
AP Business News Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—Glad news came to Wall Street this week and the stock market responded with a rally which gave the list its first net gain in three weeks.

The Federal Reserve Board lowered margin requirements to 70 per cent from 90 per cent, easing credit by permitting the "down payment" on stock purchases to be reduced to that extent.

Brokers have been praying for such action for several weeks but they had hoped for a bigger cut. The announcement came after the market closed Wednesday. The expected rally resulted Thursday but was considerably stronger than anticipated. Historically, margin cuts have brought only a temporary advance and have been followed by a resumption of the declining trend for weeks and sometimes months afterwards.

This week, things worked out differently. After some faltering Friday morning, the market moved forward once again with considerable strength. The Friday advance matched the biggest rally of 1960, which occurred Jan. 5.

The result was an advance in The Associated Press average of 2.10 to 216.10 on the week.

The Dow Jones industrial average rose 6.86 to 616.73. This indicator had fallen to 601.63 Monday, its 11th straight daily decline. This figure was dangerously close to the "support level" of about 599, where previous declines were halted March 8 and May 2. A technical rally Tuesday saved the market from breaking through this "double bottom" and signaling a further sharp decline. But Tuesday's advance was wiped out by another slow, gloomy retreat Wednesday.

The news of the cut in margin, coming as it did Wednesday afternoon, brought a ray of sunshine at a time when Wall Street's mood was extremely murky. Most analysts predicted the market would sink below the previous 1960 support. So the Thursday rally came in the nick of time, from the technician's viewpoint. The real surprise came Friday when the list continued to advance, more strongly than on the previous day.

The most active issue this week on the New York Stock Exchange was American Motors, up ½ at 22⅜ on 241,800 shares. Most active on the American Stock Exchange was New Haven Clock, off ¼ at 1¾ on 115,700 shares.

U.S. government bond prices went to 1960 highs again this week. Corporates took a smaller step forward, their third in four weeks.

Volume inched to $22,772,000 par value on the New York Stock Exchange from $22,490,000 a week ago, the lowest in almost 2½ years. A year ago volume was $28,587,000.

CHICAGO (AP)—Twice during the week the butcher hog market equalled its highest price in 19 months as the supply dwindled slightly and shipper demand improved.

On Monday and again on Friday, the market topped at $19 as it did on the closing two days of last week.

Buyers for shippers reported offerings of heavier weights were scarce and they took a number of lighter kinds to fill out their requirements. On that general good demand the market closed steady to 25 cents higher for the week.

Slaughter steer demand was rather slow throughout the week and prices were steady to 50 cents lower with the extreme setback on high choice and prime grades.

Offerings for the period increased only slightly and buyers said that was a steadying factor in the trade.

In the sheep market, the supply increased somewhat but it consisted mainly of spring slaughter lambs which declined 50 cents to $1.50 a hundredweight, reaching a crop low. Carcass lamb prices also hit their lowest levels of the year.

BEANS HELD CENTER OF STAGE IN WEEK'S TRADING IN GRAINS

By GIL MAYO
AP Business News Writer

CHICAGO (AP) — Chief interest in grain futures trading centered this week on soybeans where prices shifted rather broadly and closed with substantial gains.

Grains were on the defensive most of the time, bucking generally moderate hedge selling and profit taking or outright liquidation.

Soybeans derived their strength almost entirely from weather and reports of slow crop development. Two broad runups early in the week brought out a flurry of profit selling on Thursday and early Friday but the drive was not particularly heavy and prices again had resumed their upward trend at the finish.

Sparking the last push was a report that the crop, despite several days of favorable weather, still was well behind normal development and making little progress toward recovering the lag. The early strength was linked with a government report that the carryover on Oct. 1, the end of the crop year, probably would not exceed 40 million bushels. The trade for months had been guided by an estimate of 60 million in the carryover.

While the same weather influences were considered applicable to the corn crop, it reacted only slightly or not at all since the carryover of that grain already is at burdensome proportions.

Soybeans are the only commodity likely to be in short supply before the end of this crop year or during the next. A survey by the American Soybean Assn. showed the yield is likely to be well below a year ago in some of the major producing areas.

With the winter wheat harvest nearing the finish, traders said the peak of hedge selling appeared to have passed. However, they said the market had not yet had the buoyance of the usual heavy mill buying at this time of year.

At the end of the week, wheat was ¼ cent a bushel higher to ¼ lower, September $1.84-83¾; corn ¾-⅞ lower, September $1.16¾-16; oats 1¼-2 cents lower, September 67¼-⅜; rye 2-2½ lower, September $1.15½-¾; soybeans ¾-1¼ higher, September $2.16¾-¾.

Submerged Sub Fires 3rd Missile

Following the successful double underwater launching last week, Rear Adm. William F. Raborn Jr., director of the Polaris program, declared: "There is no question that we will meet our operational date this fall." But he emphasized that several more successful launchings must be made before the missile can be considered combat-ready.

The George Washington and a sister submarine, the Patrick Henry, are slated to go on patrol, each carrying 16 nuclear-tipped missiles, by the end of the year. They are the vanguard of a fleet of 45 Polaris submarines the Navy hopes to have roaming the oceans of the world within five years.

The initial operational range will be 1,380 miles. Testing has started on advanced techniques designed to increase this eventually to 2,875 miles.

tionably the top man in the country."

Two names are mentioned frequently whenever the question is raised about a possible scramble for leadership. The names are those of ambitious Maj. Raul Castro, Fidel's brother and official heir-apparent, and soft-spoken, shrewd Ernesto Guevara, the Argentine-born revolutionary who unquestionably has a big hand in planning the path of Cuba's new government.

Raul Castro arrived home Saturday from a month-long visit to the Soviet Union, Czechoslovakia and the United Arab Republic.

There are many here who think Raul's control of the armed forces, the national police, and secret police — and this includes more than a hundred thousand people's militiamen—would make him a dangerous contender in the struggle for power.

There are many, too, who believe Guevara is the real leader of Cuba today — that the clever planning which brought the Cuban regime the active support of the Soviet Union and other Communist nations was his and Fidel simply carried out the plan.

"There are good forces at work here these days," said one Cuban historian who has watched Cuban revolutions come and go. "About the only consistent winner in the developments is the Cuban Communist party, which with the advent of the Castro revolt has moved from a small underground group to a position of respect and power in the councils of those who are running the country today."

But, he added, "Fidel is still the boss because of his personal popularity with the little people of Cuba, who are giving his regime most of its support."

Find Strangled Body Of Girl Near Her Home

Lt. Daniel Dragel, head of the Chicago police crime laboratory, said the upper portion of the body was covered with mud in an apparent hasty effort to bury it, but he said leaves and small branches were used to finish the concealment.

The dark-haired, dark-eyed little girl was last seen playing near her home with her brothers and sisters and neighborhood children.

Robert Turpin, 32, Mount Prospect, told sheriff's police he saw Betsy with two young boys about 8 p.m. Friday night walking away from her home. Turpin said he notied the children while he was riding his motorcycle through the neighborhood to visit friends in the area.

A playmate, Patricia Widing, 7, told of seeing an older boy she did not know climbing trees near the Benham home about 6:30 p.m.

Benham, who operates a motorcycle repair shop in the garage of his home, reported the girl missing to police about 9 p.m., and a search was organized. Wheeling policemen, neighbors and deputy sheriffs began the search about midnight under direction of Sgt. Gerald Reiter of the Sheriff's police.

Saturday morning, Boy Scouts and other residents were recruited.

Young Naber stumbled upon the body almost immediately.

The girl's father said that she was a favorite in the neighborhood.

"She was friendly with everybody," he said.

The other Benham children are Dallas, 9; Jessie, 7; Dale, 3, and Claudia, 1½.

Sain said the hiding place was one which might be used by a killer familiar with the neighborhood. Investigation centered on a check of area residents.

Young Namer, who found the body, was questioned closely after mentioning that he noticed a man wearing a blue shirt in the vicinity of the pit after he had seen the girl's leg protruding from the debris.

The youth explained that he was too shaken by his discovery to recall much beyond the impression that such a man was there.

A pair of sun glasses picked up close to the body was ruled out as a clue when a volunteer fireman who had arrived after Naber's report said he dropped them.

Janet Miller Takes First In Junior Amateur Contest

NEW BERLIN — The Sangamon County Junior Fair four-day program was completed Saturday night, July 30, with a record number of entries on display from the junior exhibitors of the area.

Feature of the daytime activities Saturday morning centered on the judging of the beef cattle, which got under way at 10 a.m., running well into the day with a record number of entries of fine livestock on exhibit.

Ricky Schildman, 12, of Springfield, along with Linda Pinkerton, 10, of Springfield, took second place honors with their accordian and dance number. Vicki Bolinger, nine-year-old acrobat of Springfield, placed third, and Cheryle Jane Grant, nine years old, and Roland Creed placed fourth with their song and dance number. Both are from Springfield.

A variety act by Cheri and Ricky Lowe, both ten, of Springfield won fifth place honors.

The preliminaries of the "Miss Sangamon County Junior Fair" queen contest was another highlight of the grandstand crowd Friday evening, with 26 Sangamon County girls entered.

Miss Andrea McCullough, 16, of New Berlin was selected and sponsored by the American Legion Post 743 of New Berlin, and Patricia Coe, rural route 6, Springfield, an 18-year-old graduate of New Berlin High school, were the local contenders. Patty was a candidate selected by the Farm Bureau group of her area. The girls appeared first in formals, then in bathing suits on the large outdoor stage. Miss Viola Suits of Springfield, a former Miss Illinois, was in charge of the queen contestants.

The perfect weather has swelled the day and nightime crowds to an all-time high for the popular county fair.

Ann Johnstone Triumphs In Western Amateur

By SKIPPER PATRICK
Associated Press Sports Writer

KANSAS CITY (AP)—Mrs. Ann Casey Johnstone climaxed a 20-year campaign for the Women's Western Amateur Golf championship with a 4 and 2 victory over Sandra Spuzich, Indianapolis school-teacher, Saturday.

Mrs. Johnstone, 37-year-old greyhaired mother from Mason City, Ia., built up a 4-hole lead during the morning round of the finals. She held off a rally by Miss Spuzich in the afternoon and clinched it with a 17-foot uphill birdie putt on the 34th hole.

Just how long Mrs. Johnstone had been after the western title she wouldn't say. But her husband, Les Johnstone declared "it's been a good 20 years."

Mrs. Johnstone won the 2nd hole of the morning round to go 1 up. Miss Spuzich, a game 23-year-old competitor playing her third year of major golf, never caught up although she pulled within one hole of a tie going out during the second 18.

Miss Spuzich was 10 over par, Mrs. Johnstone 5 over after the morning round over the 6,141 yard par 36-36—72 course.

Mrs. Johnstone's long putt on the 16th, or 34th hole for the day, settled it.

Moves Into 1st Place Tie In American Open

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Marlene Bauer Hagge rallied with a 4-under-par 36-35—71 to deadlock faltering Mickey Wright at 220 Saturday after 54 holes in the American Women's Open Golf Tournament.

Mrs. Hagge, who has not won a tournament since the Hoosier celebrity a year ago, played near-perfection golf to overtake Miss Wright. Marlene's play was so accurate she needed only one long putt, an 18-footer on the 16th, in shooting five birdies on the 6,400-yard Hiawatha course.

Miss Wright, shooting a 77, was extremely erratic off the tee as she experienced a third-round blowup.

Patty Berg fired a 74 to retain third place with a 222 total, two strokes back.

Tied at 223 were National Open champion Betsy Rawls, who had a 77 Saturday, and Kathy Cornelius, with a 74.

41 BANDS ENTER CONTEST AT STATE FAIR

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — Forty-one high school bands have been signed for the Illinois State Fair band contest to be held Aug. 15-19, G. W. Patrick, Springfield, superintendent of the contest, announced Saturday.

NIXON ATTACKS FARM PROBLEM

The vice president said there is no single farm problem but several farm problems occurring in varying geographical areas and depending on the kind of crop grown.

Nixon said farm surpluses will not be eliminated under the three- to four-year target date he envisions. He said extra food storage is needed for civil defense and for fighting famine abroad. He said the surpluses must be frozen and not moved into the free markets to depress prices.

And farm income must be held up while the disposal of surpluses is being accomplished, he emphasized. One approach, he went on, might be payment in kind, whereby a farmer who takes land out of production is given from surplus stores the crops he might have grown.

The vice president said the Republicans have been losing ground in the farm belt steadily since 1952 but he said prospects are "much improved" now.

The vice president said the Republican candidates from the farm belt have reacted favorably to the party's platform stand.

The Republican farm plank suggests cutting production and raising prices by retiring land and also makes use of price support.

More emphasis on supports, production controls and payments is made in the Democratic plank.

The Republican plank as finally adopted leans more to Nixon's views than those of Benson.

The cheers from Nixon's acceptance speech had scarcely died down before he and his staff began rounding up senators and congressmen from farm states for the talks.

Nixon made a telephone call himself to invite Sen. George A. Aiken of Vermont, senior Republican on the Senate Agriculture Committee and an opponent of rigid farm controls. Aiken did not attend the convention, but Nixon wanted him at the conference.

Others among the approximately 60 representatives of states whose prosperity depends a great deal on agriculture included Sen. Milton E. Young, of North Dakota, vocal advocate of high price supports and a member of the Senate Agriculture Committee; Sen. Bourke B. Hickenlooper of Iowa, a committee mmeber; and Sen. Roman L. Hruska of Nebraska.

Both Nixon and his Democratic opponent, Sen. John F. Kennedy of Massachusetts, have called the farm situation the biggest domestic problem facing the nation.

Littler Clutches To Eastern Lead For Final Round

By GEORGE BOWEN

BALTIMORE (AP) — Gene Littler of Singing Hills, Calif., slogged his way to 73, one over par 72, Saturday in the backwash of tropical storm Brenda and still managed to hold doggedly to a one-stroke lead through three rounds of the Eastern Open Golf Tournament.

Littler's 54-hole total of 206 was a step ahead of Al Besselink of Grossinger, N.Y., Frank Boynton of Orlando, Fla., and Jackie Burke of Kiamesha, N.Y.

The trio pulled up behind Littler by breaking the suddenly tough par of Pine Ridge. Burke and Besselink each shot 71 and Boynton turned in 69, second lowest score of the day.

The final round of the tourney for $25,000 in awards will be played Sunday by the 60 pros who scored 220 or less. Among those who failed to make the cut was Dave Ragan, the defending champion from Orlando, with 222.

Littler, who had slashed 11 strokes off par on his first two rounds, encountered along with the others a different course. It was waterlogged from a heavy overnight rain and winds from the storm still swirled around during the early part of the third round.

Juan Rodriguez, 24-year-old Puerto Rican, and Doug Ford were among those to quickly go down the drain. They took off on the round a stroke back of Littler.

Rodriguez went four over par on the first nine holes and wound up with 76 for 210 and a tie for 11th. Ford took a murderous seven on the par four sixth hole and could do no better than 75 ofr a total 209.

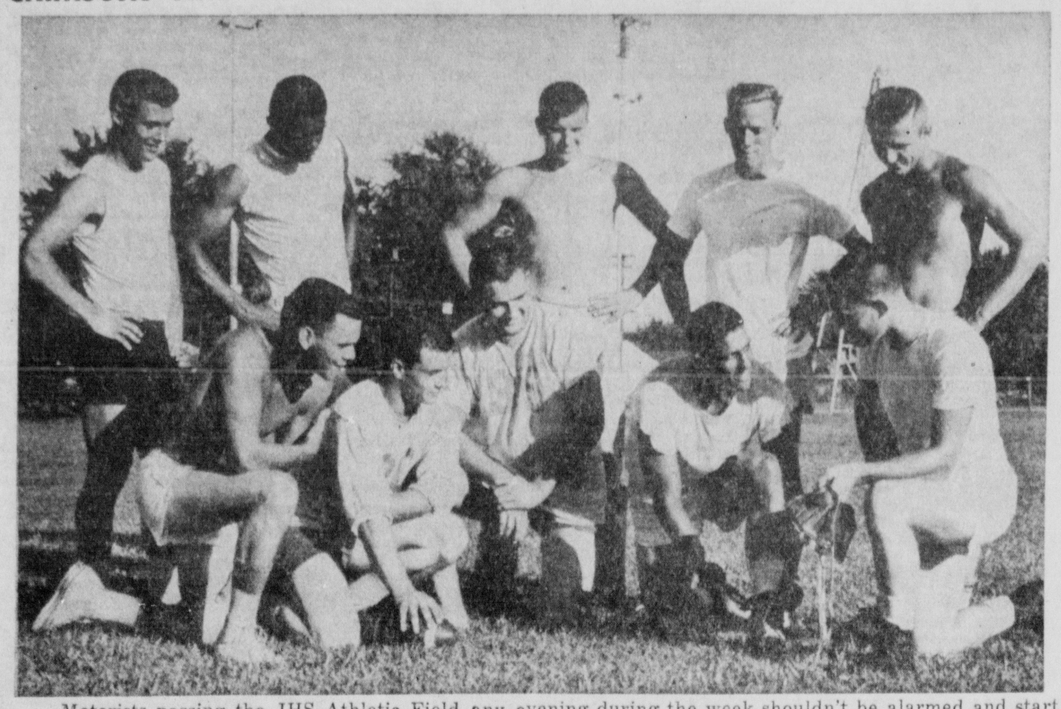
CRIMSONS AND EX-CRIMSONS BEGIN OWN SUPERVISED GRID DRILLS



Motorists passing the JHS Athletic Field any evening during the week shouldn't be alarmed and start thinking football drills are already underway. Although it's about a month away before coaches are permitted to send their charges through the paces, several Crimsons and a few ex-Crimsons have taken it on their own to get into shape for the pigskin season. The group appeared interested in the lead weights worn by Merritt Norvell, who hopes to be a regular left halfback for the Wisconsin Badgers this fall.

THE OLD FAMILIAR CHARGE—sets any football coach's heart to jumping about this time of year especially Bob Kraushaar and Al Rosenberger who have taught the above contingent all their football with the exception of Wes Coulter, who is a transfer student from East Peoria High where he served as fullback the 1959 campaign.

Indiana Case To Get Action From Big Ten Today

Assistant conference commissioner Bill Reed said Saturday a news conference was planned for 3 p.m., CDT, at which, an announcement will be made "covering the Indiana situation." He declined further comment.

The Hoosier school last April was placed on four-years probation by the National Collegiate Athletic Assn. for alleged violation of rules in recruiting six prospective football players.

Since then, the Big Ten has conducted a similar investigation of Indiana with reports that new recruiting viclations were uncovered.

The conference handbook says a school must show cause why its conference membership should not be ended if it employes or retains an athletic staff member who has violated recruiting rules.

In the process of his investigation, Commissioner K. L. (Tug) Wilson has informed Indiana of the specific charges against the school. Whether Indiana has had a prior hearing before Wilson is not known.

Under the NCAA probation, Indiana is ineligible to enter teams or athletes in NCAA championship competition and is banned from participation in NCAA-controlled TV programs.

Indiana football coach Phil Dickens was in hot water with the Big Ten in his first Hoosier year, 1957, being suspended for that entire season for recruiting violations.

At the time the NCAA probation was invoked, Dickens said "It's a dad-burned shame. We thought we had done everything possible to avert anything like this. We had tried our best to live up to every rule."

MAY MAKE OLYMPIC HISTORY

OSLO (AP) — An 18-year-old schoolboy from Oslo may write Olympic history in the Bay of Naples next month.

Peder Lunde Jr.—third generation of a world famous yatching family — has been picked as helmsman for the Norwegian entered Flying Dutchman "Sirene FD N5."

His grandfather, Eugen Lunde, won the 6-meter class in the 1924 Olympics and his father, Peder Lunde, captured the silver medal in the 5.5-meter class at Helsinki in 1952.

Ralph Kress, Cleveland first base coach, pitched a no-hit, no-run game for eight and one-third innings for Baltimore against Montreal in the 1945 International League playoffs. He lost 1-0 in nine innings.

Easterbrook To Visit Jacksonville On Tour

CHAMPAIGN, Ill., — Sixty-eight cities in Illinois, and St. Louis, Mo., are included in the itinerary of the 1960 University of Illinois football poster tour. The trips, designed to promote the outstanding Illini home schedule, begins Monday, Aug. 15.

Capt. Bill Brown, Mendota, senior fullback and a strong All-America candidate, and John Easterbrook, Champaign, 5-8, 156-pound senior varsity quarterback, will make the four week-long treks.

Brown is a football player of the "old" school. He has gained great respect as a corner linebacker on defense, and he is one of the nation's best ball carriers.

Brown's brother, Jim, also plays fullback for Illinois, and the two are considered the finest fullback duo in the middlewest.

Easterbrook is a marked contrast to the 5-11, 211-pound Illini captain. Last year, the home-grown Illini quarterback was the smallest regular player in the Big Ten.

Despite his lack of size, Easterbrook has been the first-team quarterback at Illinois for two years. As a sophomore, he was the fourth-ranked passer in the conference. Last year, he did not see as much action because of an injury. However, he was ready when he was needed, and he played a major role in late-season victories over Wisconsin and Northwestern.

Easterbrook's father, Jim, was an Illini halfback in 1939-40.

Accompanying the grid stars on the various trips will be three members of the University of Illinois staff: Jim Vermette, former Illini baseball star, now field secretary for the Alumni association; Charles Bellatti, supervisor of athletic publicity, and Brodie Westen, a member of the freshman coaching staff.

The poster tour advertises the five Illinois home games this fall: Sept. 24, Indiana; Oct. 1, West Virginia; Oct. 8, Ohio State (homecoming); Oct. 22, Penn State (Dad's Day); and Nov. 12, Wisconsin ("I" Men's Day).

Aug. 15-19 (Brodie Westen-John Easterbrook) — Monday, Clinton, Decatur, Jacksonville; Tuesday, Quincy, Alton; Wednesday, Collinsville, East St. Louis, St. Louis; Thursday, Edwardsville, Belleville; Friday, Litchfield, Springfield, Lincoln.

Boston Players Keeping Tabs On Gary Geiger

BOSTON (AP) — Boston outfielder Gary Geiger was an uncomfortable but far from forgotten young man Saturday as his Red Sox teammates were rained out of a game with Detroit.

Medical authorities said that Geiger's occassional chest pains will continue for another few days.

He is scheduled to be released next week to go home for a complete rest so he can resume his athletic career at the opening of 1961 spring training.

Among Geiger's early visitors have been Red Sox owner Tom Yawkey, manager Mike Higgins and his roomate on the team, Vic Wertz.

Geiger was surprised, by a long distance phone call from Eddie Stanky who had been a coach at Cleveland when Gary played for the Indians.

Orioles Triumph Over Cleveland In Ninth, 4-3

BALTIMORE (AP) — Jim Busby's two-out single in the last of the ninth inning scored Billy Klaus from third base and gave the Baltimore Orioles a 4-3 victory over the Cleveland Indians Saturday.

A two-run homer by Cleveland's Marty Keough tied the score in the eighth inning.

FAN BREEZES

BY STAN SPOTTS
Journal Courier Sports Editor

Tom Farrell and Jerry Walz will battle it out today in a 36-hole match to determine the championship in the Nichols Park Open. Wood Phillips, Park pro, will probably journey with the twosome when they play their first 18 holes at 9:00 a.m. Sunday morning and wind up the tournament in the final 18 holes beginning at two o'clock. Walz is the Open defending champ having defeated Jim O'Brien for the title in '59. Farrell and Walz finished 1-2 in the City Championship last year. It looked as though the match was going to be delayed as Farrell came up with an ailing tummy this week and he begged off an operation. Although the crown could have been won by a forfeit if Farrell couldn't have played, it would have never happened as Walz had stated this week he would wait as long as it took Tom to get on his feet again. True sportsmanship still prevails!

— o —

I don't like to put the hex on anyone, especially a couple of harness racing owners, but it would be okay with racing fans in this locale if Dr. C. A. Henley of Jacksonville and George Winters, Jr., were to repeat the same laurels at the 1960 State Fair as they did in 1959 behind the brilliant two-year-old Hark Win. Last year Doc and Winters hooked up in a partnership in the harness racing game and this combination now has what is termed the top stable in the Midwestern Illinois Racing Association circuit.

— o —

Winters, who hails from Carrollton, is the principal trainer and driver and when he dons the Henley-Winters colors Monday, August 15, in the Illinois State Fair Colt Stakes for two-year-old pacers, all their hopes will be riding with Noble I Win, a half brother to Hark Win. In 1959 Hark Win won first place money from the $54,050 purse, the richest race of its type in the world, in addition to the Governor's Trophy and a berth at the top of the list of pacers in the State Fair Colt Stakes. He reaped further honors in this race by tying the track record with a time of 2:04.

— o —

Following his fair triumph, Hark Win was sold because Henley and Winters felt they couldn't leave their work to race him in California during the winter months. Hark Win will appear the same day as Noble I Win at the State Fair but the half-brothers won't meet as Hark Win is now a three-year-old. Post time August 15 is 12:30 p.m. Noble I Win, by Don Adios and Ripiwin, will have to outclass 47 other entries in order to give the Henley-Winters stable its second consecutive Governor's Trophy.

— o —

But the two-year-old pacer is enjoying a great season. In 12 starts he has captured nine firsts and a pair of seconds. If anyone wants to see Noble I Win in action before the State Fair they can journey to Mt. Sterling August 4 at 2 o'clock for his next outing. He already has strutted his winning ways before the grandstands at Rushville, Jerseyville, Carrollton, Carlinville and Lewistown which compose the Midwestern racing circuit. He also ran at Carthage.

— o —

It may be an omen of some kind, at least let us hope it is for Noble I Win. The State Fair track was recently resurfaced for the first time in 10 years and each time it's been done a new record has been set. Need we say more? Henley and Winters also have another entry this year at the state fair in Debbie's Princess, a two year old filly, who is matched with 39 others Saturday, August 13.

— o —

Another racer in the Henley-Winters stable is Governor Win, a four-year-old who is a full brother to Hark Win by Don Adios and Mc I Win. When the Jacksonville-Carrollton combination purchased Governor Win he was a three-year-old without any racing experience. But a year makes a difference and the 'ole' Governor has been placing in the money with repeated success. Rounding out the group is Miss Direct, a three-year-old filly. A third party has an interest in two yearlings out of Lt. Commander. They are Robin H and Grace's Lady, who are in training now for the 1961 campaign and it looks as though the Henley-Winters colors are going to be right up there at the front for a long time and it couldn't happen to two finer harness horsemen!

— o —

We missed a few of the local boys at the football gathering at the athletic field the other evening but we still had a fine turnout with 10 donning the cleated shoes. Absent were Milt McPike and Bobby Watts, who now do their footballing at Kirksville, and Gary Brockhouse, who is sure to figure in the grid plans at Valparaiso this fall. There are a number of other JHS athletes attending colleges, namely Dave Bone, Ernie Hildner, Stan Caine, Fred Douglas and Danny Woodward. With the exception of Hildner, who plays soccer and football, the rest have interest in other sports such as basketball, track and tennis. We may have omitted a few names but we hope not as these names were the only ones that came to mind.

— o —

There was plenty of talent with the necessary football weight awaiting us when we arrived on the scene. There was John Satphen, 190 pound soph, who hopes to play both ways at an end position for Knox; Mike Scott, 180 pound junior, who will be Upper Iowa University's quarterback; Merritt Norvell, 187 pounds, who is termed the fastest back in the Wisconsin camp by Charles Bellatti, U. of I. publicity chief. Three Crimsons that played last year when JHS was stopped, 20-6, by Eisenhower Decatur for the first time in 32 games were fullback-linebacker Don Schillinger, 180; quarterback Dick Parker, 165, and tackle-guard Bob Rieman, 210. The trio will go to Eastern at Charleston, Ill. When asked if they were getting any help and this can mean only one thing, the reply was, "No, scholarships are just given to the first eleven."

— o —

If weight is any indication then the Crimsons should have a big backfield this year. Several of these lads could alternate at defensive end slots for Coach Bob Kraushaar. Ken Norton, who broke the individual school track scoring record this spring, is back as a senior and is very trim 198 pounds. Wes Coulter, a transfer fullback from East Peoria, is in the 190 pound class as is Mike Mentler. Both boys will be juniors! Last but not least showing up at Thursday's session was Gary Spangenberg, who had a terrific season last fall. Gary has put on some weight and the 170 pounds should be to his advantage. Although he missed the final two games with a thigh injury, which plagued him throughout the basketball season, Gary still managed to pace the Crimsons in just about every offensive department if memory serves us correctly. Coulter held the same distinction for the East Peoria Raiders. This could be a whale of a season if the line can overcome the disadvantage of inexperience. Who knows, maybe another season like the 1956 campaign which launched three undefeated teams is in the process.

In The Money At Monmouth

OCEANPORT, N. J. (AP) — Apatontheback, getting something more than a pat in the stretch from jockey Ray Broussard's whip, raced to a surprise half-length victory in the $115,125 Sorority Stakes for 2-year-old fillies at Monmouth Park Saturday.

Mrs. Ada L. Rice's home-bred horse swung into the home stretch of the 6-furlong test with a 1½-length lead over Princess Leeyan. But it needed one of Broussard's best rides to get Apatontheback home in front for a net purse of $67,890. Home Dear trailed by another 1½ lengths for third in the field of 13.

Chisox Reclaim Top Perch In Standings Over Rain-Idled Yanks

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Chicago White Sox moved back into first place Saturday by one percentage point over the rain-idled New York Yankees as they put over a run in the 11th inning on an error by third baseman Reno Bertoia and defeated the Washington Senators 3-2.

Billy Pierce worked the two extra innings for the Sox and blanked the Senators on two hits.

Luis Aparicio whacked a leadoff double in the 11th and took third on Nellie Fox's bunt. With the Washington infield drawn tight, Roy Sievers chopped a hopper toward Bertoia.

Bertoia, seeing he had a play at the plate on the sprinting Aparicio, took his eye off the ball for a second, bobbled it and then couldn't make a play as the winning run came home.

In the sixth inning, Sievers wiped out a 1-0 Washington lead with a two-run homer. The Senators tied it off White Sox starter Frank Baumann in the ninth on singles by Jim Lemon and Billy Gardner and a sacrifice fly by Earl Battey.

Continental Ready To Become 3rd Major Loop

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Sports Writer

The Continental League is expected to make formal application for recognition as a third major league Tuesday at Chicago at an important meeting of baseball's expansion committees.

No formal action is anticipated but the committees' recommendations could chart the course for the sport's future program.

Bill Shea, founder of the Continental League, will attend the meeting with Branch Rickey, league president, and representatives of each of the eight CL clubs.

Shea and Rickey plan to show how they have qualified under the 10-point system the majors set up last year. However, their efforts at settling the problem of indemnification of minor leagues for cities they will lose appear to have failed.

The Continental announced July 21 it proposed a plan of payment on the basis of 40 cents for each paid admission in the year in which major league status is granted by organized baseball. However, the American Assn. tabled that proposal as "not very attractive." The Continental offer would approximate a total of $400,000. The American Assn. wants $800,000 for each franchise.

Both the National and American leagues have indicated they are ready to expand internally if it develops that a third major is impracticable. The National voted July 18 to expand to 10 clubs. The American has been ready to branch out for years.

As a result of the National League's July 18 meeting, an invitation was extended to the Continental League for the Tuesday session.

Girls National Tennis Honors Won By Heldman

CINCINNATI (AP)—Julie Heldman, New York teen-ager, used precision placements to run her opponent ragged Saturday and win the national tennis championship for girls 15 and under.

Both girls are 15.

After the singles workout, Miss Henreid and Joanne Swanson of Pawtucket, R.I., were not match for the doubles top seeds, Patty Barth of San Diego and Margaret Taylor, San Marino, Calif. The Barth-Taylor combination won the doubles title, 6-0, 6-2.

Although she showed a powerful service in earlier matches, Miss Heldman did not try for power in the championship final. She concentrated on making Miss Henreid chase returns from one side of the court to another, keeping her opponent scrambling.

Five Local Swimmers Qualify For State

BLOOMINGTON—The Jacksonville Swim Club composed of eleven swimmers from Jacksonville Country Club and Ron Yates represented the local Jaycees in grand fashion Saturday at the Holiday Pool by qualifying five natators for the State Meet to be held at Springfield on August 26 and 27.

The following swimmers received first places for Jacksonville and thus qualified for the state meet. Only firsts are eligible to compete in the state.

50 meter freestyle (Boys 14-15) Ron Yates.

50 meter breaststroke (Boys 14-15) Warren Massey.

50 meter breaststroke (Girls 14-15) Jean Hemphill.

Only three cities, Bloomington-Normal, Springfield and Jacksonville, were represented in the fine meet but the competition was tremendous and many of the races were very close.

Warren Massey's victory in the breaststroke was the best race of the day. All three swimmers were right together at the finish with Warren winning by a touch. The Massey family will be well represented at the state meet. The brother-sister combination consists of 11-year-old Becky and 15-year-old Warren. Both specialize in the breaststroke.

Another exciting race was Jean Hemphill's in which she finished in a dead heat with a girl from Bloomington in the 50 meter breaststroke. They had to race again and Jean won the second time in another close finish.

Several of the local persons earning seconds were: Carol Davis 2; Mike Bagale 2; John Mathews; Candy Aichele; Judy Ferry; Stan Ferguson; Jean Hemphill and the 200 meter freestyle relay team composed of Warren Massey, Stan Ferguson, Bill Pigott and Ron Yates.

Friday Baseball

By JOE REICHLER
Associated Press Sports Writer

In April if any person had predicted that Washington's perennial cellar-dwellers would be over the .500 mark on July 30 he'd have been carted off to the nearest sanitarium.

But today, the Senators were not only playing .505 ball, but actually battling for a spot in the first division, 6½ games out of first place.

The Nats went over the .500 mark for the first time since opening day Friday by defeating the Chicago White Sox 7-5 for their third straight victory. Since July 3, the Nats have won 16 while losing only seven to move to fifth place.

Washington trailing 5-3, rallied for three runs in the seventh and added an insurance run in the eighth.

Tom Morgan, who relieved Camilo Pascual in the seventh and gave up back-to-back home runs by Roy Sievers and Sherm Lollar, was the winner. It was his second relief victory in three nights since coming to Washington from Detroit. Gerry Staley, in relief, was the loser.

Home runs by Danny Kravitz and Marv Throneberry and six-hit pitching by Ray Herbert gave the Athletics their first victory in Yankee Stadium since June 11, 1959. Kansas City had lost 11 straight in New York.

Ted Williams singled home Don Buddin with two out in the third inning to provide the only run as Boston's Bill Monbouquette won a duel from Detroit's Jim Bunning.

Jack Harshman, making only his second start for Cleveland after being sidelined three months with back trouble, received credit for the victory that snapped the Indians' five-game losing string.

Watch out Pittsburgh and Milwaukee—the Dodgers are sniffing that World Series money again and at the rate they've been moving lately, another pennant could fly at the Los Angeles Coliseum in October.

Paced by Stan Williams, their new mound ace, the Dodgers Friday night turned back Milwaukee 7-3 to climb within two games of the second-place Braves. It was their 16th victory in the last 20 games.

Los Angeles remained five games behind the league-leading Pirates who shut out Chicago 4-0 to widen their margin over the Braves to three games. St. Louis' fourth-place Cards remained two games in back of the Dodgers with a 3-0 victory over Philadelphia. San Francisco's fifth-place Giants, a half-game in back of the Cards, nipped Cincinnati 2-1.

A crowd of 56,648 Coliseum clients saw Williams space 10 Milwaukee hits for his fifth straight victory and his 11th against two defeats. Williams was backed by an 11-hit attack against nemesis Bob Buhl and three relievers that included three safeties apiece by Norm Larker and Joe Pignatano.

The Giants managed only four hits but took advantage of three Reds' miscues to score a pair of unearned runs off starter and loser Jay Hook. Mike McCormick gained his 10th victory in 16 decisions.

Ernie Broglio hurled a five-hit shutout and struck out 12 Phillies for his 11th triumph. Cardinal third baseman Kenny Boyer drove in all three Redbirds' runs with a single and double.

Vinegar Bend Mizell pitched a two-hitter to extend the Cubs' losing streak to eight. Don Hoak batted across three Pirate runs, two on a homer.

Brooklyn Race To On And On

NEW YORK (AP —) The Calumet Farm's On-and-On threw the handicap division into a tizzy when he drew away in the final yards of the $109,400 Brooklyn Handicap at Aqueduct to score a head decision over Greek Star in a photo finish.

What had been billed as a handicap championship showdown among the big three of Bald Eagle, Sword Dancer and First Landing proved as much of a washout as the weather earlier in the day. A two-inch rainfall, prodded by the edge of tropical storm Brenda, left the track a sea of water and mud.

Bald Eagle finished fourth, a length and a quarter behind Waltz while Sword Dancer was fifth and First Landing sixth in the field of seven. Manassa Mauler was last in the 72nd running of the mile and one quarter event.

On-and-On, under Jockey Ismael Valenzuela, was timed in 2:03 flat, carrying 118 pounds.

Hobbie Becomes A Father While Hurling Cubs To 6-1 Victory Over Pirates

CHICAGO (AP) — Glen Hobbie rushed his wife to the hospital Saturday then sped to Wrigley Field to pitch the Chicago Cubs to a 6-1 victory over the league-leading Pittsburgh Pirates while becoming a father for the first time.

At the end of the fourth inning, Hobbie was informed by Manager Lou Boudreau that his wife, Sharon, had given birth to a 6¾-pound boy and that she was feeling so good she was watching the game on television.

Earlier in the day, Cub pitcher Dick Ellsworth also became a father of a boy.

It was a day of blessed events—even to the extent that the last-place Cubs ended an eight-game losing streak.

Giants Win In 10th On Error Over Redlegs, 2-1

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Jim Davenport's two-out 10th inning single after a throwing error by Roy McMillan, scored Andre Rodgers with the winning run Saturday in a 2-1 San Francisco victory over Cincinnati.

Jim Brosnan relieved in the seventh after the Giants mustered only one hit in six innings off Cal McLish. Brosnan walked Rodgers, two outs later, Don Blasingame beat out a grounder that McMillan at second threw into the stands. The runners advanced to second and third. Davenport's single brought the Giants their fourth straight victory.

The lone hit off McLish was Orlando Cepeda's double leading off the fifth. Cepeda moved to third on a groundout and scored on Bob Schmidt's sacrifice fly.

LADY LUCK RIDES AGAIN

ADENAU, Germany (AP) — Lady Luck was riding with Masten Gregory Saturday when he escaped with just the loss of an artificial tooth in a crackup of his speeding racing car.

Gregory's red Cooper Maserati spun off the Nuerburgring track, rolled over twice, and then crashed among the trees.

The bespectacled, 28 - year - old pilot from Kansas City Mo., was thrown out of the cockpit when the car stood in the air almost vertically for a split second before crashing.

VERY FEW AT FAT MAN'S TABLE IN BEARS CAMP

Instead of the near 4,000 calories consumed by the players in condition, those who are overweight receive from 1,200 to 1,400 calories which means no gravy, no starches, no deserts.

Third base coach Bill Hitchcock of the Detroit Tigers started playing with Kansas City in the American Assn. in 1939.

U.S. Olympic Team Continues Training Grind

EUGENE, Ore. (AP) — Its first week of training completed, the U.S. track and field team Sunday continues the three-week program designed to bring it to the peak of condition for the Rome Olympics.

Two more dress rehearsals are on the practice agenda—at Long Beach, Calif., Aug. 5 and Pomona, Calif., Aug. 12.

It is apparent America's main Olympic strength will be in the field events and the hurdles. John Thomas of Cambridge, Mass., has made the 7-foot high jump a habit. Three vaulters, Don Bragg of Penns Grove, N. J.; Ron Morris of Burbank, Calif.; and Dave Clark of Grand Prairie, Tex., all cleared 15 feet during the workouts.

Broad jumper Ralph Boston of Laurel, Miss., was consistently around the 26-foot mark. Rink Babka of Palo Alto, Calif., tossed the discus more than 193 feet. In Al Cantello of Norristown, Pa., and Bill Alley of Short Hills, N.J., the Yankees have the world's two top javelin throwers.

Glen Davis of Barberton, Ohio, holder of the world and Olympic records, heads the U.S. 400-meter crew. Dick Howard of Albuquerque, N. M., and Cliff Cushman of Grand Forks, N. D., have done :49.8 this year to beat the :50.1 Olympic mark.

In the 100 meter hurdles, Lee Calhoun of Gary, Ind., is back to defend his 1956 title and :13.5 Olympic record. Both Willie May of Chicago and Hayes Jones of Pontiac, Mich., have matched that mark and Calhoun has beaten it by a tenth of a second this season.

This is the 37th year in which the New York Yankees have hit 100 or more home runs.

Quill Surprises Delaware Field

STANTON, Del (AP)— Reginald M. Webster's Quill unleashed a tremendous surge through the stretch Saturday to win the $131,437 Delaware Handicap by nine lengths over Royal Native, the odds-on favorite and leading candidate for handicap mare champion of the year.

Running fourth through most of the 1¼-mile test for fillies and mares, Quill, under jockey Bob Ussery, rushed to the lead at the top of the stretch and pulled away with every stride.

Royal Native was second with Geechee Lou third. Fourth in the field of eight was Indian Maid.

Championship
1:30 Jacksonville vs. Springfield

SPRINGFIELD—Jacksonville's YMCA Colt League All-Stars breezed into the finals of the District One Colt Tournament here Saturday night as Fred Curtis handcuffed Danville with a four hitter for a 6-0 shutout triumph.

Curtis was never in any serious trouble as he got eight on strikeouts and walked only three. His teammates gave him a few anxious moments in the final inning as they committed their only two errors of the game.

Ken Norton, who posted the 2-1 win over Taylorville Friday night with the aid of Curtis' relief stint, will probably get the starting assignment this afternoon for the showdown game which will determine the representative in the regional tourney at Bellwood, Ill., next weekend. If Norton doesn't start then it will be Joe Cors taking the mound.

Jacksonville scored what proved to be the winning run in the second inning when Tom Ferry opened the frame with a triple and he came on to score on a passed ball.

The winners garnered two more tallies in the fourth on Mentler's single, Ferry's walk, and Watts' single before the losing chucker issued three straight bases on balls.

In the fifth stanza, a walk, single, another walk and Gordon Heaton's single provided two more runs for a 5-0 margin. The Jacksonville nine garnered its final tally in the sixth.

Mike Mentler led Jacksonville's five-hit attack with two singles in four times at bat and he also scored two runs. The only extra base hit of the game was Ferry's double in the second inning.

Springfield defeated Davenport in the nightcap to enter the finals with a 4-1 victory.

Last Minute Entries Expected For Lefty Meet

TACOMA, Wash. (AP)—Last-minute entries are expected to swell the field for the National Left Handed Golfers Assn. tournament to its 225-man limit before the first round is played Tuesday at the tricky Fircrest Golf Club.

Champions in both the senior and open divisions will be on hand to defend the titles they won in Galesburg, Ill., last summer. Ed Sweetman, a 23-year-old college senior from Greensboro, N. C., is the open division champion and Ted Olsee of Grand Rapids, Mich., won the 1959 senior crown.

Tuesday's and Wednesday's rounds of 18 holes will qualify the field into flights for the final 36 holes. Championships in both divisions will be decided by the low gross scores for 72 holes over the 6,470-yard, par 71 Fircrest layout.

Morgan County Fair Opens Five-Day Run Wednesday, August 3

Jacksonville area residents will have an opportunity to visit one of the largest Morgan County Junior Progress Fairs in several years when the gates to the west side fairgrounds open at 8 o'clock Wednesday, August 3.

Many top-notch events will be presented before the grandstand audience during the afternoon and evening programs.

Spectators need not wear overshoes to visit the merchant displays, no matter what the weather. All merchant exhibits will be housed in semi-permanent quarters at the east edge of the race track, along Grand Avenue. The entire merchant display area is covered with a hard surface and includes a long walkway between two special tents held by large posts set in concrete.

Last Call For Entries

Last call for a number of contests is now in order—most close tomorrow, August 1.

The PONY TAIL CONTEST for girls from 6 through 16 is designed to determine the most attractive pony tail hair style. Mrs. Wilma Colclasure, chairman of the contest reports heavy entries among the younger age group but there is still time to enter the contest which is scheduled for 6:30 p.m. on Wednesday in front of the grandstand.

All contestants should report at least 30 minutes prior to their respective event to receive numbers and other material.

The annual BABY PARADE should prove to be a crowd-pleasing event for grandstand spectators. Each entrant must be one through six years-of-age and parents may not accompany the contestant on the judging ramp.

Costumes may include all types of story book characters or represent most any theme desired. Mrs. Milton Birdsell, chairman of the program, decided to leave the costume up to the entrant so that a wide variety will be available.

Help Wanted

The last group of tents will be on the grounds and ready to be erected Sunday and Monday. Robert Houston, president of the fair association, asked that any volunteers that could make it on Sunday afternoon and all day Monday would be "very welcome."

The merchants' tent is scheduled for installation Monday and the various exhibits will go into place sometime Tuesday for the Wednesday opening.

The PET PARADE will be held Saturday afternoon, August 6, at 2:30 o'clock in front of the grandstand.

There is no age limit for the exhibitor and the pets may be exhibited in three classes with prizes for winners in the $1 to $4 range.

Each pet may be entered in only one class, according to Mrs. Clarence Quintal, chairman of the contest.

Spectators will have an opportunity to see all makes and models of tractors perform in the TRACTOR-PULL CONTEST Wednesday at 1 p.m. in front of the grandstand.

Three classes will be allowed, depending upon the weight of the machine.

The event has long been a favorite at a number of other midwestern fairs.

Carcass Class

The fair will feature "the proof of the pudding" again this year in the carcass class hog contest.

All entries will be judged by experts for various points and quality of meat. Eight of the top hogs will then be killed and the judges' decisions checked. The carcasses will be on display in a special freezer-trailer throughout the fair and auctioned to the highest bidder on Saturday.

Edward E. Johnston

Edward Johnston Tells Of Role In Hawaii's Admission To Union

by R. Henry Davis

What's the most thrilling moment of a lifetime? For Jacksonville native Edward Elliott Johnston it was undoubtedly an experience such as that which took place on March 12, 1959 — the day the United States Senate passed the historic bill which made the Territory of Hawaii the 50th state in the union. This event sparked huge demonstrations which eventually grew to include hundreds of thousands of people with the former Jacksonville man right in the center.

From a position with the Journal Courier, through various occupations including a radio announcer and a member of the armed forces, to his most recent position as a member of the controversial civil rights subcommittee of the Republican National Convention last week, Johnston recalled Saturday some of the more interesting moments of his varied career.

Jacksonville Native

Born in Jacksonville, he is the son of Mrs. Erma Johnston of 605 West State street, who has for many years taught mathematics at the local high school. He attended Jacksonville High graduating with the Class of 1935, and later received his degree from Illinois College with the Class of 1939. He early achieved distinction on the I.C. campus by becoming a member of Phi Beta Kappa.

From Jacksonville where he worked for several printing establishments including the Journal Courier, Johnston went to Danville, Ill., where as a radio announcer - writer - general worker he began the career which took him to the position of acting governor of the territory of Hawaii. As he put it "the unpleasantness between the nations" interrupted his plans and from June of 1942 to April 1948 he was a member of the United States Armed Forces.

However, this may have been a blessing in disguise for during his term with the armed forces he made his first visit to the Hawaiian Islands in 1945. And it was during this time that he decided to make his home in the tropical isles permanently.

Works for Republicans

At the same time that he was developing his private career Johnston had another powerful interest—working for the Republican party. Many of the early experiences in the field of politics happened right here in Jacksonville.

In Hawaii he began as a precinct treasurer and rose to County Chairman for one of the four counties in Hawaii—a county which represented 75% of the island population. And it was through this association that he was honored and privileged to be nominated by President Dwight D. Eisenhower for the position of Secretary of the Territory—a position which combines the offices of lieutenant governor and secretary of state.

All of which brings us back to that historic moment on March 12 when by direct line from the Senate chambers where the actual vote was being taken, acting Governor of Hawaii Edward Johnston received word from the Governor of Hawaii, William Quinn, that the necessary number of votes had just been cast to allow Hawaii to become the 50th state.

Gets Historic Message

Johnston stated, "As soon as I got the message from Governor Quinn, I triggered a pre-arranged system and air raid sirens blasted out all over the islands and the spontaneous demonstrations followed. Traffic was tied up for hours and we had to walk part of the way to a reception that night. I have never seen anything like it. I think it might even have been bigger than V-J Day demonstrations.

Johnston has another claim to historical fame in Hawaii for he was the official representative of the United States at ceremonies on August 21, 1959, in which President Eisenhower signed the bill which officially admitted Hawaii to the union. This time it was he who relayed the message to the islands—a signal which initiated ceremonies inaugurating William F. Quinn as the first Governor of the State of Hawaii.

Republican Convention

He was again acting governor when the first hurricane hit the islands in 1959. Hurricane Dot swept through the islands doing considerable damage but through careful planning officials were able to avoid loss of life.

Edward Johnston came to Jacksonville this week after serving as one of Hawaii's 12 delegates to the Republican Nominating Convention in Chicago. He was a member of the 103 member platform committee and a member of the civil rights subcommittee which became a key factor in the convention. It was his first convention and he summed it up by saying, "It was very exciting."

It was also a great deal of hard work. Long gruelling sessions which began Thursday for Johnston and ended Tuesday with the final adoption by the platform committee of the draft to be presented to the convention were necessary to build the Republican platform. Among others on the committee Johnston shared the work with Congresswoman Mrs. Edna Simpson.

Visits In City

He arrived in Jacksonville Friday and will leave this afternoon to return home to Kailua, a city near Honolulu where he lives with his wife, Clare, and daughters, Janice and Karen. What his plans are for the future are not definite other than making the most of his two current interests which he serves as President of the 50th State Insurance Associates, Inc., and Chairman of the Board of Economic Development — an advisory body for the Secretary of the Interior.

One thing is sure he stated emphatically, "I am not running for office in the 1960 elections."

While he is undecided at the moment, we wish Edward Johnston every possible success in the future. We sincerely hope the coming years will be as productive for him as those already past.

100 YEARS AGO

The 8th State Fair

To Be Held In Jacksonville

By Cecil Tendick

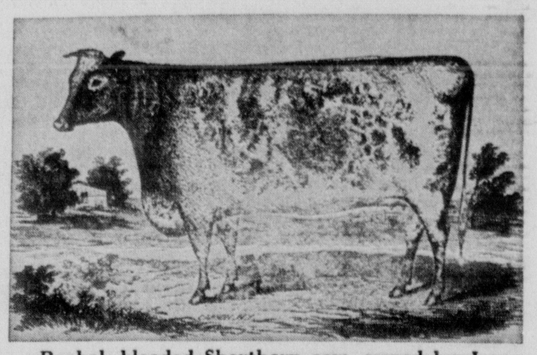
In the Sept. 7, 1860, issue of the Jacksonville Sentinel James N. Bailey, proprietor and editor, wrote:

All is in readiness for the state fair.

The Chicago Zouaves and the Springfield Grays have been invited and are confidently expected to be on hand.

The candidates for the Presidency have been invited and are expected.

The Sentinel will not be issued during fair week. This will give us an opportunity to look around a little, and visit with our friends.



Rachel, blooded Shorthorn cow, owned by James N. Brown, Berlin, Illinois. First premium, Illinois State Fair, Jacksonville, Sept. 12, 1860.

Editor Bailey's jottings comprised the advance "publicity" the 8th Illinois State Fair got in his paper. But the fair was one of the most successful ever held. The weather, that great bugaboo, helped a lot. It misted all day on opening day, Tuesday, Sept. 10, but there wasn't much going on anyway. Then the weather was wonderful until Saturday, again there wasn't much going on, when a regular "goose drowner" hit the fairgrounds whittled out of a "a beautiful oak and elm grove located a mile west of the municipality." The heavy rain called off the "lady rider in side-saddle" class and the slow mule race.

Wonderful Success

But on Tuesday there were 22,000 people at the fair and on Wednesday there were 24,000. Taken altogether, the exposition was a complete success. With no state financial assistance, with a season ticket at a dollar, which permitted the holder to exhibit as many entries as he wanted to, with general admission at 20c and children over 12 at 10c, with a seat in the giant amphitheatre with its multi-level seats at a dime, the treasurer took in enough money to pay all expenses and report a balance of $1,710.30.

This is very good, and if you don't believe it ask any fair board member, anytime.

Some events, though, didn't come up to Editor Bailey's quiet statements. The Chicago Zouaves didn't show up; neither did the Presidential candidates: Stephen A. Douglas for the Democrats and Abraham Lincoln for the Republicans. Both of these men were very well known by everybody in this area; neither could be compared with the industrious extroverts who run for office today. Douglas made a half-dozen or so speeches during the campaign; Lincoln didn't make any.

Parade Soldiers

But the Springfield Grays, with their splendid uniforms and commanded by Capt. William Cook, put on a good show Thursday of fair week. The crowd roared in appreciation as they went through their elaborate maneuvers. But the Grays, in fez and baggy, gaudy pantaloons, didn't know at the time that within eight months they would be called to form Illinois' first infantry regiment to face the Confederacy.

More than a majority of the drillers who delighted the state fair crowd of 1860 resigned pronto. They liked to drill and play soldier, but they had no inclination to get in a spot where their uniform might get dirty, or where people shot at each other with real bullets.

Capt. Cook, though, stayed on and was elevated to brigadier general.

Why Jacksonville?

How did Jacksonville get the 8th state fair?

One man, Stephen A. Dunlap did it. He was perhaps the most astute politician who ever kicked around the dust of Morgan county, or slid in its mud. He was equally at home at a champagne party at Chicgo's plush hotel, the Tremont, at a corn licker brawl at Sulphur Springs, or a hoe-down at Buckhorn.

A group of Jacksonville boosters, in 1857, began talking about the advantages of having the state fair here. After all, the city was one of the largest in Illinois, "with a population in probable excess of 10,000 inhabitants." (In September, 1860, the boosters were pretty sore at the census bureau people who could count only 8,100 noses in Jacksonville.)

He Was Selected

Stephen A. Dunlap was unofficially, but unanimously, picked for the job of getting the fair here.

He learned that the state fair was rotated about the various cities, that the 14 man executive committee of the Illinois State Agricultural society picked the site, and that the executive committee members were selected by the delegates of the "legally constituted" county fair boards. This was all a practical politician needed to know and in the fall of 1858 Dunlap was elected to the committee.

In January of 1859 he helped Freeport get the state fair. In the same month of 1860 he put in the Jacksonville bid. So did Bloomington, Chicago and Peoria.

Chicago wanted to vote on the proposition right away, but Dunlap managed to stall things off from Monday to Wednesday.

Something For Everybody

About half of the committee were drys, the other half were wets. Dunlap's good temperance friend, J. N. Brown of Berlin, invited his friends to a series of sumptuous feeds at his palatial place, Grove Park. Dunlap personally took charge of the rest of the committee and after a merry round of the better spots in the Capitol City, plus plenty of bourbon and oysters, the whole committee got together again.

By this time the Peoria representatives had wearied of the idea of playing host to the 1861 fair and they threw in with their friends from Freeport and Jacksonville. The vote was: Jacksonville, 8; Chicago, 3; Bloomington, 3.

On Sept. 14, 1860, the last day of the fair, Dunlap resigned from the executive committee.

It had been a wonderful fair.

Welcome Home, Ed

Jacksonville is proud to welcome home a native son, Edward Elliott Johnston, now a leader in the 50th state, Hawaii.

If we had such things as ticker tape receptions, he should be given a good one. For Ed Johnston has made his mark in Hawaii not only in the business world but in politics as well.

A former Secretary of State of Hawaii, he has just come from the Republican convention in Chicago, where he had an active role on the platform committee in shaping the G.O.P. program for the 1960 campaign. He is highly regarded as one of the party's top leaders in our newest state.

As he leaves to return to beautiful Hawaii, his old friends salute him and bid him Godspeed.

G.O.P. Puts Strong Team On Field

Richard M. Nixon proved before the eyes of all America during the hectic days of the G.O.P. convention that he is capable of vigorous and forceful leadership.

Winning the support of Gov. Rockefeller of New York, he prevailed upon the platform committee to forge a progressive, forthright program without pie in the sky promises.

And he succeeded in rallying the delegates to nominate as his running mate, Henry Cabot Lodge, the United States Ambassador to the United Nations, a world statesman of the first rank, as Nixon described him.

We do not agree at all with the opinion voiced by some of the Illinois delegates that Lodge is a weak candidate. On the contrary, we believe that he will add great strength to the Republican ticket. The most critical problems facing the United States today stem from the cold war with Soviet Russia. In this area both Nixon and Lodge have demonstrated time and again that they are able, strong, unrelenting foes of communism wherever it rears its ugly head.

Nixon's acceptance speech outlined his policies and his hopes for a better America and a better world. In sharp contrast to Kennedy's acceptance speech at Los Angeles, Nixon's was on a high plane. He did, however, promise a fighting campaign in every one of the 50 states of the Union.

This campaign, according to an announcement made Friday, will include face to face debates with John F. Kennedy on TV. It will be interesting, indeed, to see how the campaign unfolds. The proposed debates hold the promise of being the best since the Lincoln-Douglas debates of more than a century ago.

Manners Make Friends

A girl should tell her date she had a good time even if she found him boring. There is no excuse for a girl's being impolite to a boy simply because he didn't turn out to be her idea of Prince Charming.

In Hollywood

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) —"The motion is carried and the convention is adjourned sine die."

With those words from Chicago, Hoosier Charlie Halleck pounded the last gavel on the 1960 National Convention Thursday night.

So how did you like the shows? Naturally, it is hard for TV viewers to assess the Democratic and Republican conventions without letting their partisan persuasion leak in. But let's try.

This was the third set of televised conventions. Compared to 1952 and 1956, they were flat affairs.

Remember now, we're talking about them as TV shows and not as political exercises. The essential factor for good drama is an element of suspense. Neither Democrats nor the Republicans had it this year.

Traditionally, the Democrats put on a liveller show. They did their best to provide one this year, with Harry Truman acting as advance man. The ex-president, with accusations of a rigged convention, set the normal tone for a Democratic meet: conflict.

Will Rogers once remarked: "I don't belong to an organized party. I'm a Democrat."

The disorganization of the Democrats was apparent to TV viewers who observed delegates milling as speakers orated. The party discord also provided some good offstage scenes, especially the "debate" between the two men who later shared the ticket.

The token competition among the Democrats was utterly lacking in the Republican convention. Only 10 votes interfered with a perfect total for both candidates.

BY RALPH W. LOEW, D.D.
Written for Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

The sign at the airport read "Welcome to Cyprus." Underneath was printed "William Shakespeare." The incident is recorded in the book, "Exodus," by Leonard Uris, telling of the arrival of one Mark Parker who saw the sign and was certain that there was more to the quotation.

Later, sipping coffee, he remembered that the words were from Othello but what was the whole statement? He couldn't remember. The taxi driver thought that it was an attempt to be nice to tourists. Then, it came to him. The sign read "Welcome to Cyprus." The full quotation was:

"Welcome to Cyprus: goats and monkeys."

There are other half-quotations we choose for our benefit. One of Emerson's is printed in church bulletins and reads:

"I like the silent church."

That's a nice admonition urging us to be quiet. But, as a preacher, I'm silenced by the rest of the quotation which reads:

"I like the silent church better than the sermon which follows."

There was a much - married couple who had the justice of the peace reword the vows into a paraphrase in which they promised "to live together as long as both shall love." That's a kind of cynical honesty for legalized serial adultery.

Or consider the civilian who wants all of the privileges of America and none of its responsibilities, all of its freedom and none of its discipline, all of its rewards and none of the payments.

The widely publicized Charles Van Doren found himself rationalizing his conduct under the pretext that "this is just entertainment." Presumably this could justify any performance whether before the TV camera or the grand jury.

In an article on how to teach children to read, the writer says children tend to substitute personal situations for written words, thus changing the meaning.

One child read "Salami" for "Solomon."

Another read the sentence "When my father comes home for dinner," substituting the latter word for "supper." Said the lad, "We have dinner at noon and my father would never come home then." We read words as we want to hear them.

Is this the reason we read "forgive us," and forget to finish the petition with "as we forgive those who trespass against us"?

Is this the reason we can read "Thou shalt not bear false witness against thy neighbor" and engage in propaganda or perjury to justify self?

Is this the reason men can read "They that worship God must worship in spirit and in truth" and yet permit economic, political or social suppression of someone who doesn't fit a particular form of faith?

There are many arts for man to master. Chief among the simplest is the art of reading the whole sentence, quoting the entire paragraph, understanding the complete moral truth.

The moon rocket is reported to have failed because of a missing part. Men fail in some other areas because of a missing fact.

Communication

Editor
Jacksonville Journal Courier
Jacksonville, Ill.
Dear Sir:

With all the letters submitted that have seemed to imply that the Plan Commission has lost out to "commercialism," it has seemed to me to be high time some one came to the defense of the Plan Commission and what it is trying to do. The Commission has spent interminable hours trying to work out, with the Kincaid company, some compromise between the two hard facts that face us: the desperate need for more parking for our business area, and the expressed opinions that things should be left as they are. We have no wish to sacrifice all semblance of a pleasant spot within the area; neither can we ignore the changing needs regarding automobile traffic and parking. The months that have been spent on this problem alone should convince anyone that whatever is done, is not being done lightly and without serious thought for the years to come.

The Jacksonville Merchant's Association, a subsidiary of the Chamber of Commerce, has voted unanimously in favor of parking within the park area. The business establishments, and access to them, are the life-blood of our city; almost every single person going downtown requires a parking space. The plan presently being given the most emphasis will provide 294 additional parking spaces, and still allows for a strip approximately 60 feet wide on both sides to be reserved for planting and benches. Surely this is not destroying our "bit of green."

As for the monument, certainly we don't want to destroy it or hide it away in some corner. I understand the names on it are of men of Morgan county, not just Jacksonville. It would seem to me that it would be seen and appreciated by many more people of the county if it were in some place other than where people are hurrying by on a shopping trip. Why not, for instance, in a prominent place out at Nichols Park, set off with a background of shrubbery and perhaps stone benches?

Very sincerely yours,
Mrs. C. G. Eggenberger,
29 Sunset Drive.

'What's the Use of Trying?' Is Marriage Danger Signal

Memo to Men:

When a wife gets to the point where she thinks, "What's the use of trying?" a marriage is in bad shape.

And what brings a wife to that new low in her attitude toward her own marriage? It is almost always the feeling that she is no longer loved and cherished.

- Maybe her husband no longer bothers to talk to her, and she gets the feeling that he finds her too dull to bother with.
- Maybe her husband has stopped paying her personal compliments and has fallen into the habit of looking at her without really seeing her.
- Maybe her husband no longer shows her any affection, treating her more like a housekeeper than a wife.
- Maybe she suspects that her husband is interested in someone else and doesn't know how to cope with his indifference to her.
- Maybe her husband has taken to blaming her for everything that goes wrong.
- Maybe her husband seems reluctant to spend any more time than he has to with his family, stopping off at a bar every evening after work.
- Maybe her husband is always grouchy and hard to please so that she and the children are always apprehensive and afraid of arousing his anger.
- Maybe he is critical of everything she does, with never a word of appreciation or encouragement.
- Maybe her husband is so tight-fisted that she never has a dime to call her own and dreads asking for enough money for bare necessities.

Those are some of the reasons why wives get to feeling unloved and unappreciated. They're reasons why they begin to wonder, "What's the use of trying?"

And when a wife gives up hope, it's almost a cinch that the marriage will go from bad to worse.

The World Today

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press News Analyst

CHICAGO (AP) — The politicians, now that their two big conventions are over, will get an extraordinarily fast chance to try to make good on their high-sounding promises here and in Los Angeles.

Congress must return Aug. 8 to complete its unfinished business. It took a vacation during the conventions. The unfinished business happens to involve some of the most important promises in both the Democratic and Republican platforms.

For instance: Aid to education and raising the minimum wage. If the advocates of civil rights, the most heated issue in both platforms, try to get action on that subject they may make a shambles of what is scheduled to be a three-week session.

Usually Congress in a campaign year completes its work before the conventions start. This gives the politicians until the following January—when the next Congress takes over—to produce on the big campaign talk.

This year Congress did such a meager job between January and the time it recessed in July, it had to return. But this upcoming session will be doubly extraordinary.

Three of the two parties' four top candidates will be working in the Senate. Because the whole country will be watching, their Senate activities will actually be part of their campaign.

President Eisenhower, anxious for a Republican victory, will have a hand in things which could range from holding conferences with congressional leaders to posing for pictures with Richard M. Nixon, the Republicans' presidential nominee.

Nixon, as vice president, will preside over the Senate, his usual role. Behind the scenes, of course, he'll be putting the heat on his fellow Republicans to see things his way.

Facing him all the while will be Sens. John F. Kennedy and Lyndon Johnson, who were given the No. 1 and No. 2 spots on the Democrats' ticket at their Los Angeles convention two weeks ago.

Nixon's vice presidential running mate, Henry Cabot Lodge, can return temporarily to his job as U.S. ambassador to the United Nations.

Among the measures Congress left pending when it went on vacation were a minimum wage bill and another to give federal aid to education. On both these issues the Democratic and Republican platform promises differ.

The Democrats called for raising the minimum wage — which applies to workers in interstate commerce — from $1-an-hour to $1.25. The republicans pledged support to raising the minimum, but didn't say how high.

Actually, before Congress recessed the Republicans were balking at anything higher than $1.15 and it wasn't clear they would even go for that.

Since the Democrats have big majorities in House and Senate they have the numbers to pass a $1.25 minimum wage bill. If it's too high for his taste, Eisenhower could veto it. That would kill it for 1960 if the Democrats weren't able to muster the necessary two-thirds vote to overcome the veto.

But if Eisenhower uses the veto for such a purpose — and makes it stick — He'll hurt Nixon with organized labor which supports the 25-cent boost in the minimum wage.

On education the Republicans advocate federal aid for school construction but not for teachers' salaries. The Democrats promised help not only in building classrooms but in paying teachers, too.

Other platform promises are apt to get mixed up in the three-week congressional session. But the politicians will have to hurry up their business and get out on the road with their campaign.

Besides the presidential race, all House seats and one-third of the Senate seats are at stake in November.

Experts Spotlight Subject Of Work for Golden-Agers

BY MARIE DAERR

Don't oversell the idea that changing employers' attitudes toward older workers is going to solve the job problem of the aging.

This warning was given by Harold W. Williams, executive director of Pennsylvania's advisory board on problems of older workers, at the recent University of Michigan conference on aging.

Individual factors often are at fault. Those include lack of skills for a particular job, living in an economically depressed community and the job-seeker's own inflexible attitude toward new kinds of work.

Also, in Williams' opinion, too many people want to work — and not enough want to consume.

"Today, we think there's something wrong if we're not doing something useful," he told the conference.

Other conference speakers suggested that many older people really don't want to work, but are pressured into job-hunting by family members and acquaintances.

Williams said older workers often may find the best job chances in smaller business firms. On the other hand, bigger organizations can give workers a chance to "taper off" by transferring to other jobs within the firm.

What about antidiscrimination laws designed to help older workers? Williams says he thinks legislation against barring people from jobs because of their age is of greater value in changing public attitudes toward workers over 65, than in getting convictions of individual violators of the law.

John M. Convery, the National Association of Manufacturers' industrial relations consultant, stated that foremen and other workers should be educated to accept newly-hired older people as colleagues.

He said two of the biggest employment barriers for older people are promotion from within the same company and the use of seniority.

Labor representatives at the conference said their movement "needs to drop its paternalistic attitude and adopt new programs to show how retired workers should be treated."

Clinton Golden, former vice president of the United Steelworkers of America, believes that each union should have its own department or committee to handle matters concerning retired workers.

"Retired persons can play useful roles in local union meetings," he said. "They can march in picket lines, help with organizing work and, if properly informed, speak in support of the union point of view on various issues."

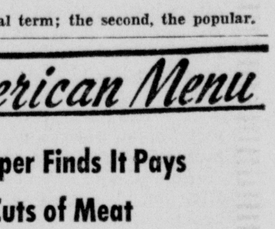
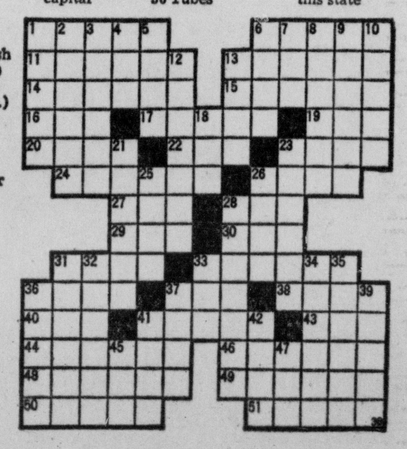
Answer to Previous Puzzle





They'll Do It Every Time

By Jimmy Hatlo

Nearly 100 persons interested in better grain handling and storage turned out Monday to join a tour of five farms that have made distinct, though different, steps in that direction.

The tour was arranged by the Extension workers of Cass, Morgan, Sangamon and Menard counties and the Sangamon Valley Farm Bureau Farm Management Service. The visitors saw brand-new drying and storage facilities for shelled corn and small grains, small and large batch grain drying installations, manual and automatically controlled equipment, and former ear corn cribs and horse barns that were converted for shelled corn storage.

In the third picture part of the group swarms around the base of a 1,000 bushel drier that can reduce moisture content at the rate of 2% an hour. Then the dried grain is elevated to the top of an old horse barn that has been converted for shelled corn storage.

The photo was taken on the Jurgens Bros. farm northwest of Ashland. The brothers, Walter and Harold, ran 25,000 bushels through the drier last season, pulling 25% moisture corn down to 13% in 8½ hours for the entire 1,000 bushel operation loading, drying, cooling and emptying — at a cost of 2½c per bushel.

After the grain is dried it is kept in prime condition by aerating it from time to time. The photo above shows part of the group as Russell Meridith, Cass county farm adviser, queries Walter Jurgens (back to camera) as to how he does this. He has a vented tunnel at the bottom of the grain and uses a fan from a discarded stoker to suck cool air through the kernels. Jurgens probes the grain periodically to determine moisture and uses the fan as required. He called aeration cheap, easy and effective.

At the Charles Knepler farm east of Berlin the group saw a 250 bushel batch drier, a crib designed for ear corn switched to shelled corn storage, and an automatic feed grinding installation. At the Walter Adkins and Sid Campbell farms northwest of Ashland they saw converted cribs and batch driers that automatically load themselves, dry the grain, cool it, and deliver it to a pre-selected bin.

All of the hosts said they "would hate to go back to the way we used to do it." They like the idea of shelling the corn in the field, getting started early and avoiding the field losses that accompany late harvesting. They like the idea of storing shelled corn, as conversion almost doubles the amount of grain that can be stored in the same building. They like the economy of it, and the resulting profits. Some installations paid for themselves in three years.

But they pointed out they made mistakes. They warned that shelled corn exerts much more pressure than ear corn and asserted "you can't build your interior braces too strong." They unanimously advocated the use of "the fine handbooks put out by the Illinois College of Agriculture. Just follow them and you won't go far wrong, if you go wrong at all."

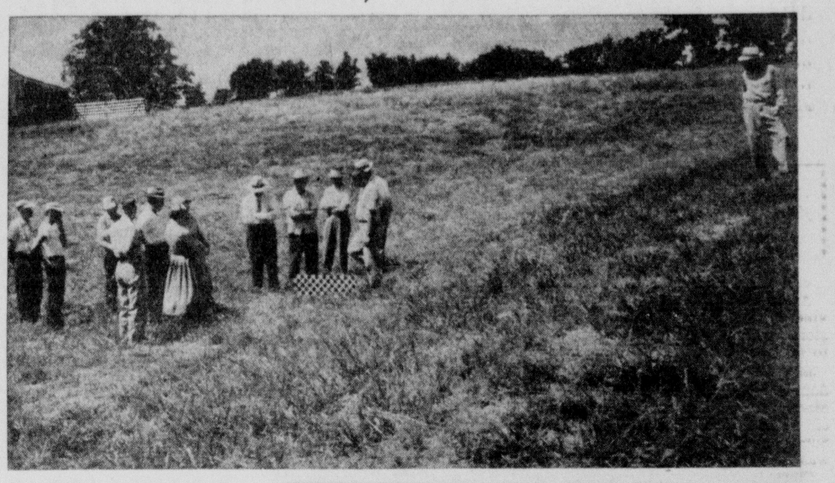
Commissioners, ASC Join Tour



Soil And Water Saving Devices Demonstrated

The Morgan county Soil Conservation district Wednesday sponsored a tour of inspection of soil and water saving installations built by farmers in the Murrayville and Nortonville areas.

It was designed to show the various proved practices now in use in Morgan county, the need for more of them, and the need for cooperation between the public and the various governmental agencies.

"So this is a dry pond," exclaimed Helen Jackson, who is usually at the counter of the local Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation office, as she stood in one at the Burl Henderson farm some five miles southeast of Woodson.

The one on the Henderson place was built in 1958 to keep a gully from getting worse. It was so bad, in fact that it was eroding the foundation of a leanto shed attached to a corn crib.

Now the rains collect behind the grass-covered structure and run, slowly and orderly, through a hooded inlet into the gully, which in time will get better, instead of worse, each year.

Leslie Rawlings farm dry pond, grass waterway and a drop box on a highway culvert that is protecting the grade. The commissioners noted that Morgan county "could use" many such installations as they reduce highway upkeep costs as they maintain the tax evaluation level of the land.

G. O. Webster farm—splendid farm pond that covers about an acre and a half, with a depth of 15 feet.

Clintland Best Oats In Morgan Test Plot

All of the varieties yielded exceptionally well, considering the late date (April 25) at which the oats were seeded. The yields listed are those before allowance is made for moisture tests. The per cent of moisture ranged from 11.2% to 14.58%.

Variety	Bu. Per Acre	% Mois.	Wt.
Clintland	71.9	12.3	32
Macon	66.7	12.65	34
Portage	66.7	13.9	32
Clintland 60	64.6	11.5	34
Minhafer	64.6	14.58	34
Goodfield	63.5	13.66	35
Putnam	61.4	11.2	34
Newton	58.3	13.5	33.5
Shield	52.6	11.5	31
Tahawka	51.5	11.5	31

More than 50 spring oat variety demonstrations have been grown on farms in Illinois in 1960, Trull said. They are a part of the overall agronomy extension program of taking the findings of research to the farmer and are made possible through the cooperation of interested farmers throughout the state.

This Week.. at Dixon Springs

W. B. Hogge, Beecher City, Effingham county, bought the top-selling ram at the recent University of Illinois Dixon Springs purebred ram sale. Hogge paid $115 for a yearling Suffolk ram. Thirteen Suffolk rams sold for an average price of $96.15. Four Hampshire rams averaged $72.50, and six Targhee rams averaged $34.17.

The big purchaser at the sale was the Paducah Chamber of Commerce. They bought four Suffolk rams and one Hampshire. The Runnymede Farm, Pembroke, Kentucky, purchased three Suffolks.

Lamb Pool

The day after the ram sale, the Illinois Livestock Marketing association held a lamb pool on the Station. Three hundred and twenty-six lambs were graded prime, choice, light choice or feeder as they were unloaded and weighed into the pens. Double blue or prime lambs sold for $18 a hundredweight. The blues sold for $16.50, while the light-weight blues brought $15.50.

Future lamb pools are scheduled for Aug. 19, Sept. 16 and Oct. 28. Lambs will be received at the Robbs cattle headquarters sale barn from 7:30 a.m. to 11 a.m. on each of those dates.

Irrigation

Lee Gard and Joe Harris, irrigation water-spreaders, have been irrigating corn the past week. This is the period when corn's need for water is most critical. A total of four inches of water applied during the two-week period of tasseling and ear shooting can boost yields by 25 to 30 bushels an acre.

This week the irrigated pastures are getting the sprinkler treatment, the first they've needed this year. Lee and Joe will apply two inches of water at each irrigation. Over a period of years, wet, dry and intermediate, they have found that an average of six irrigations will be needed on pasture.

Five yearling heifers grazing on a 2½-acre orchard grass-ladino clover pasture have utilized it well throughout the spring and summer. Grazing the mixture at this rate provides an excellent balance between clover and grass, and the orchard grass shows the greenness and tenderness that we generally associate with early spring grasses. Orchard grass has the ability to resist dormancy and remain greener and tenderer longer than most grasses in the summer.

Harry Russell Heads Junior Fair Judges

Harry G. Russell, U.I. Extension specialist in animal science, will be the principal judge of the agriculture departments of the Morgan County Junior Fair.

Russell is well and favorably known in this area, and is one of the nation's outstanding livestock judges. He will select the best cattle, sheep and hogs, including those that will be shown in the carcass class, and he will also help pick the best junior showmen of the fair.

Eight hogs will be selected for the carcass show. After they are slaughtered they will be judged by Dr. B. C. Breidenstein, specialist in the meats department of the U.I. College of Agriculture.

Two old-time favorites at the Morgan fair will be back again this year to score entries in the poultry, rabbits, eggs, vegetables and miscellaneous departments. They are Stanley Klaus, vocational agriculture instructor at Carlinville, and Herb Wendler, Pike county farm adviser.

The showmanship trophies given annually by the Jacksonville Kiwanis club will be awarded on a slightly different basis this year. Instead of having special showmanship classes in each division—beef cattle, dairy cattle, swine and sheep—each contestant will be judged on an over-all basis. Two members of the Kiwanis club will assist the judge of each division in picking the winner.

To Tour Rockbridge Farm On August 4

The South Side Stock Farm near Rockbridge in Greene county will be the site of a farm management tour Thursday, Aug. 4.

It is the first of four regional tours throughout the state conducted by the Illinois Farm Bureau Farm Management Service and the University of Illinois.

According to D. F. Wilken, University of Illinois farm management specialist, the Greene county farm offers visitors an unusual opportunity to see many new techniques of agricultural production in the "real life" situation of a commercial farm operation.

Tours begin at 10 a.m. and end at 3 p.m. The farm is located three miles south of the junction of highways 67 and 108.

A sack lunch will be provided for those making reservations through the Greene county farm adviser's office at Carrollton.

In charge of tour arrangements are Denver Kunz and Marvin Gummersheimer, fieldmen for the Lincoln Farm Bureau Farm Management Service, and John Bicket, Greene county farm adviser.

A study in the north-central states indicates that, from 1945 to 1954, 31 percent of the farmers retired, died or took nonfarm jobs. But young farmers obtained only 16 percent of the available farms. The remaining 15 percent were taken over by operating farmers to enlarge their existing units.

Jersey, Greene Cattlemen Plan Southern Tour

Cattlemen of Jersey and Greene counties will visit ranches and farms of Tennessee and Mississippi next month. The tour is being arranged by John H. Bicket, Greene county farm adviser, and Robert F. Long, Jersey county farm adviser.

It will begin at Carrollton early Sunday, Aug. 7, and the group will spend the first night at Springfield ,Tenn. On Monday and Tuesday they will be guided by livestock specialists from the University of Tennessee, with overnight stops at Camden and Memphis.

The Mississippi tour begins at Hernando, under the guidance of the animal science department of Mississippi State university. Overnight stops will be at Jackson, and at either West Point or Tupelo.

Reservations must be made in advance at either Extension office, accompanied by a $20 deposit. Plans for the trip will be completed at a meeting on Friday, Aug. 5, at the Greene county Service company in Carrollton.

JAMES POHLMAN HEADS JAYCEES AT CARROLLTON

CARROLLTON—James Pohlman was elected president of the Carrollton Jaycees at the annual election held Tuesday evening following a picnic supper at Robin Hood Country club.

Other officers elected were Donald Flaush, vice president; Robert Mehrhoff, secretary and Bernard Kania, treasurer. Charles Sullivan is the state delegate and the members of the board of directors are Robert Driver, Ed Pohlman, Joe Hartman, Robert Schacher and Jesse Hires.

A board meeting will be held before the regular meeting of the Jaycees which will be Tuesday, Aug. 9.

About 300,000 tons of charcoal is produced annually in the United States. Nearly two-thirds of it is used for cooking purposes.

Time To Apply For ACP Help

Morgan county farmers are being advised by ASC Office Manager Wallace T. Hembrough that the summer sign-up period for federal assistance on approved ACP practices will begin at the Jacksonville office Monday.

The unusually wet season has brought about many delays in the completion of earlier approved projects. These will be extended upon application at the local office.

Those who received approval for the application of limestone and rock phosphate, but have not been able to get the job done due to the weather, must also notify the ASC.

Monday also will be the beginning of the sign-up period for any approved projects which can be completed by Dec. 31. Due to the weather of the first six months of the year, funds available are larger than ordinary.

Rename Williams ASC Chairman

Wilbur C. Williams of Chapin was reelected chairman of the Morgan county Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation committee last week when the chairmen of the 18 community committees met in the Farm Bureau building.

Floyd Goodpasture of Concord, first alternate to the committee last year, exchanged places with L. Clyde Cooper, rural route 2, Jacksonville, and Lester E. Martin of Alexander, was reelected third member of the board.

Feed Handling Demonstration At Zulauf Farm

Air-tight storage for silage and corn, with mechanized feed handling, will be demonstrated on the evening of Tuesday, Aug. 9, at the Wilbur Zulauf farm, three miles east of Concord.

The event is being arranged by Bob Leinberger of Petersburg, field representative for Harper & Sauder, Eureka, and will begin at 7 p.m.

Zulauf recently added a second Harvestore—a hermetically sealed silo—to his livestock feeding setup. Visitors will see it being filled with silage, and its automatic handling of feed.

"Everybody's invited and refreshments will be served," says Leinberger.

Illinois record - keeping hog farmers averaged only $114 earnings for every $100 of feed used in 1959. But the top one-tfifth of these farms earned $38 more for every $100 of feed fed than the low one-fifth.

Farm Bureau Women Ask 'Clear Corners'

National Farm Safety Week has passed, but the Women's committee of the Farm Bureau will continue to promote safety in general and its particular phase of activity will be "Clear Corners for Safety."

They will work for clear visibility at corners and crossings through removal of obstructing crops, brush and signs.

They say "It would be appreciated if area farmers would tend to clearing of their own corners so that the committee will not find it necessary to approach them about it."

Implements on the Highway

The members also warn motorists that farm machines on highways present a problem, but one that can be solved with safety.

"Since in the process of normal farm operation it is necessary to move machinery on public roads, farmers solicit the patience and forbearance of motorists particularly at this time of year and throughout harvest. Once the motorist has left the city limits he is cautioned to be watchful of red flags by daylight, and lights and reflectors that signal a slow moving vehicle at night. A motorist should automatically slacken his speed upon sight of a tractor, with or without another piece of machinery attached, as the maximum speed of a tractor is still extremely slow compared to the automobile. On hilly roads drive even more slowly for you cannot tell what might be over the next knoll!

Danger to Children

Motorists should ever be cautious of children playing in or near the street or driveways. Statistics indicate the death of 4,700 pre-schoolers last year. Motor vehicle accidents accounted for a sizeable percentage of these deaths, followed by fires and explosives as a second high cause of death.

Spy Out Hazards

Other areas of danger in everyday living involve the proper storage of chemicals and poisons, clearing of toys and other items from steps, stairways and other passageways in the home; an annual checkup of your heating and lighting facilities; being sure guns are properly handled and empty when stored; remembering that safety precautions are necessary on or in water at all times. A new hazard has developed due to the rapid increase of boating enthusiasts. Every precaution should be taken by boat owners and operators to become familiar with and practice rules of lakes and waterways regarding boating safety.

Brain Of The X-15

(Courtesy Sperry Gyroscope Co.)

The X-15's brain is one of the most advanced airborne flight data systems ever developed. It is an extremely accurate inertial guidance system using gyroscopes developed by Sperry Gyroscope Company of Great Neck, New York.

A gyroscope is an instrument that spins so that it always points in the same direction.

In the guidance system of the X-15, electric wires are placed around the ends of the gyro so when the hypersonic (faster than sound) rocket starts to stray off course the gyro connects two of these electric wires. This causes a current to flow to an instrument on the space ship control panel which shows the pilot, who was Scott Crosfield, on the test flights that the plane is going off course.

The X-15 was unveiled at North American Aviation, Inc., Los Angeles California at 2 p.m. Pacific Standard Time, Wednesday, October 15, 1958. At the time of the space ship's unveiling the Sperry guidance system had not yet been installed. This system was delivered to the Air Force in November, 1958, and tested in a supersonic F-101 Voodoo jet fighter before being put in the X-15.

At Edwards AFB California on June 8, 1958, the X-15 received its preflight drop test. In this test it was dropped from its holder under the wing of a B 52 jet bomber at an altitude of 38,000 feet.

The drop test confirmed the wind tunnel findings—that the X-15 could make a landing with-out power. Like all space ships the X-15 must make this type of "dead stick" landing as it is called because it exhausts all its fuel on its climb into space.

Powered by a low powered test engine, made by Reaction Motors Inc., the X-15 made its first powered flight on November 5, 1959. After being dropped from its B52 mother plane, the X-15 flew in a 100-mile circumference (around) circle at about 1,400 miles-per-hour.

During this power flight a small fire developed in the X-15 motor. After this difficulty was corrected and the rocket performed satisfactorily on several test flights it was taken aloft by a B52 for its flight into space.

After the space ship dropped a safe distance from its mother plane the pilot turned on the rockets and pointed the plane straight up.

Soon the X-15's full powered motors developed a 60,000 pound thrust. This gave the rocket a 9g (nine times the pull of gravity) acceleration. By doing this the X-15 quickly used up all its fuel which gave it a speed of mach 7 (seven times the speed of sound.)

This was enough speed for the rocket to coast up to 200 miles before the pull of earth's gravity could stop it.

You Can Make Your Own Gear

By Joseph A. Smith

Part 2: Making Haste Slowly

Last week we started giving you some hints on making your own gear. Here are further suggestions including the fact that the slower you go the sooner you have gear that WORKS!

Past experience here (learned while supervising the construction of a number of commercial kits by young hams) has all too often proven that it is the common cold solder joint or a loose unsoldered or resin core joint that keeps an otherwise perfectly assembled kit from working. Be wise! Check over the completed kit with a V.O.M. before you try operating it!

Do this carefully, and this check will bring out most of those elusive "Bugs" found in almost every new piece of gear. In other words, you might follow a procedure something like this:

1. Carefully check the completed circuit with a V.O.M. for wiring mistakes, open or loose solder joints, cold solder joints, etc.
2. Check all resistances and capacitors to be sure all are in their proper position and place in the circuit, and are of the correct value.
3. Check voltages and current if need be.
4. Locate the portion of the circuit that is inoperative, and hunt for its cause.

If you're "home brewing" the gear out of the junk-box, first carefully check all parts to be used before you start out. Eliminate any not up-to-par component parts before you start to solder them into a circuit. This will save more headaches.

In general applications, not critical by nature, a resistor or capacitor within 20% of its stated value will work OK. For a chassis lay-out plan, either follow one that appears in the handbook that is most similar to your own brainchild, or, if your radio experience is wide enough, make your own chassis lay-out while following normal setup practices as the handbook suggests for component part placement, shielding, wiring, etc.

Here, too, it is true that HASTE MAKES WASTE. Do it right the first time ,and then carefully check yourself! It will pay off in the long run.

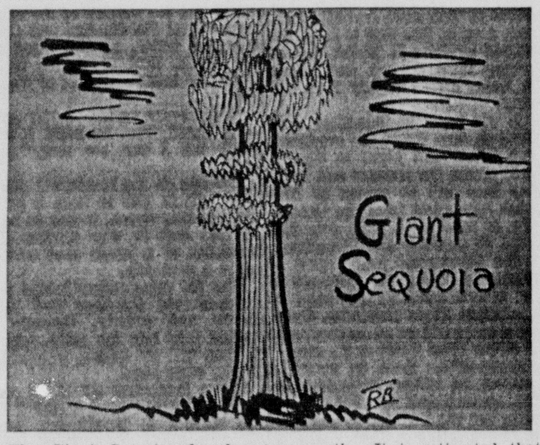
Wonder World—

Name Giant Tree For Giant Indian

By Rip Barnsdall



The Giant Sequoias found on the Pacific Coast were named after a very famous, but little known member of the Cherokee Indian tribe.

Sequoyah, a physically handicapped Indian, became quite impressed with the white man's written language when he first came into contact with it. He almost single-handedly, devised a written language for his tribe. The work proved to be successful.

Two Giants

Because he was a giant of knowledge and good-doing, the giant of all our native trees was named in honor of him.

The Sequoias are perhaps the oldest living things still alive on our earth. It is estimated that some of them are over 7,000 years old! This means they were standing over 5,000 years before Christ was born.

The big ones rise 300 feet or more into the sky. The circumference, or distance around, the trunk at the base of the trees can be up to 100 feet.

California Redwood

The California Redwood Tree, another species of the Sequoia, is somewhat smaller, somewhat darked in color, and doesn't live as long.

Both the Sequoia and the Redwood are practically insect free. Somehow over a long period of time they seem to have developed an immunity to destructive insects.

Getting More Fun On Outings

By Joseph A. Smith

Do You like to travel, take bike hikes, go on week-end outings, camp out as time and opportunity permit? Well, you're not alone!

A little advance preparation will make these outings even more fun. These ideas will also help Pop and Mom in planning their outings.

While just going on a short outing with no exact place in mind is OK for a short hike or bike ride, you should prepare better for a longer outing for top fun,. If you doubt this, have you ever gone out on an outing and when there found that you had forgotten something that you evry much needed?

Well, I dare say you and the rest of us have too; so let's plan better next time. Now MOM usually does a large part of planning all family outings; however,YOU, my reader, can plan most of your own shorter outings PROVIDED you art familiar with a few basics of need equipment, clothes, and other gear.

Be Real Outdoorman

It should be clear that not everything to be given here would be needed on all outings, but common sense will help you to chose the things most needed. Bear in mind, that the hiker or bike rider takes along with him only the things he will most need. After all, that excess gear is only added weight that you must tote along!

So take time to decide the gear actually needed. Leave that surplus stuff at home. It only adds weight.

Need I remind you how that extra gear adds weight ESPECIALLY to the tired biker around that latter part of that hike?? I'll bet a ton of coal never felt heavier!

Thus it all boils down to knowing how to choose the right gear that will be needed on a particular outing, and taking only that amount of gear that will be needed. Here, good old common sense will come into play.

A measuring cup that has a space above the 1 cup line should be used in measuring liquids for recipes. Cooks have a tendency to skimp in measuring liquids which this type of cup helps to prevent. It's spillproof, too!

Next time you serve creamed dried beef for Sunday brunch boil some eggs and shell them. Add the slivered hard-cooked egg whites to the beef; for a mimosa-effect garnish, press the hard-cooked egg yolks through a small fine sieve.

Vacation Time Fun

By Mary Pence Claywell

Part II: Echo Elf

It was a new day, and Tommy's last week on the farm of his Grandparents where he was visiting during vacation.

He came down stairs smiling, his young mind ablaze with plans for his last jaunt. He had left on of his favorite spots to climax his many happy adventures, and he thought with a little pang of regret how soon he would leave it all behind and head back to the city.

"I guess I'm half farmer myself," he pondered, but then he said aloud, "I think I'll go over to Echo Hill today, Grandma; Just Spot and me . . . I mean 'Spot and I,' he smiled, and listen to the Echo Elf that calls back everything I say to him. I wonder, Grandma, just how old the Echo Elf is?"

"That would be hard to say, Tommy; but Grandpa says his grandfather first told him about the old man years ago;; and he hays his grandfather's father told his own gramp when he was just a tike like you . . . so I guess Mr. Echo is as old as time itself, Tommy."

Mysterious Voice

Tommy began to picture an old man with flowing white hair, swept by strong winds, standing hidden among the big rocks that walled in the great divide. Of course he knew the voice that came back to him again; but just the same, the whole thing was quite a mysetry.

"I'll fix up a good lunch for you, Son, for I don't expect you can make it back by lunch-time, can you?"

"No," answered Tommy, and he already felt hungry as he watched Grandma pack sandwiches, cookies and fruit into a sturdy little box. Spot wagged his tail, and licked out his little red tongue, understanding in his own dog way just what was going on.

"Spot and I like the wide open spaces out underneath God's open skies, Gran; we never miss finding new things in His wonderful creation where His miracles are everywhere."

"I think I'll ride my bike today, there's a good path up the far side of the hill and where I can't ride, I'll walk and wheel my bike along."

To Be Continued

To make commercially-prepared sour cream, a lactic acid culture is added to sweet cream; the mixture is then allowed to incubate until the correct flavor and consistency have been reached.

As I See It

by E. W. BROWN

Every now and then, a scientist comes up with a new theory about this world of ours that's stranger - than - science - fiction. The latest is that man may just not be the smartest creature in the "animal kingdom" after all. Dr. John C. Lilly, head of a Navy research team in the Virgin Islands, has recently announced that the most intelligent creature of us all may be the bottle-nosed dolphin, popularly known as the porpoise. In his 5 years on the project, Dr. Lilly has found that dolphins can talk to each other, mimic words of humans, will come to each other's aid in distress, and even seem to have a sense of humor. And to top it all, they have a brain that is just as complex as a man's, and 40% bigger. Which all only goes to prove what fishermen have known all along . . . a fish is smarter than a man any time.

NEW HOME SERIES

NO. 21

You can see the fruits of imagination in almost every detail of the design and plan of the attractive new home of Dr. and Mrs. Thomas L. Wilson, built on a secluded knoll among tall Elm and Maple trees, situated about two miles West of Jacksonville, a short distance North of Route No. 104. The affinity of the house for its surroundings is emphasized by its exterior of white beveled horizontal siding combined with Native Cut Stont.

The inviting entrance, outlined by decorative stone planters, is graced by a distinctive door with raised Shado-mould panels of turquoise, enhanced by an ornamental brass escutcheon. The doorway is flanked by brass lamps. As you enter, there is a vestibule featuring guest closets on either side. The floor is Ivory Tessera Vinyl Corlon.

Straight ahead the living room opens invitingly, your first impression is that of true hospitality. The spacious room (thirty-seven feet in length) features an awning type window at either end, and two triple-section view windows on the front. A Cherry paneled wall contains a floor-to-ceiling stone fireplace with a raised hearth. The other walls are of a Sandalwood shade, the ceiling is Shasta White. Rose-Beige wall to wall carpeting and window valances of the Sandalwood shade complement the decor. The end section of the living room is used for formal dining. A Butternut finish has been used for the woodwork throughout the house.

A den, carefully planned for the specific activities of the family, adjoins the living room. The Wilson family consists of two daughters, Jennifer and Mary Beth, and three sons, Charles, Thomas II., and John. Golden-toned Western Pine paneling on the walls, and a variety of built-in shelves and cabinets give this room an air of comfort. A display of "Champion Weimaraner" trophies on the mantel dramatize the Stone fireplace, which is identical to that of the living rom. A trough cove mould conceals strip lighting, providing good background illumination. The ceiling is of acoustic tile, the floor is Ivory Tessera Vinyl Corlon. There is a door opening to the outside, as well as a door leading to the basement. A wide snack-counter serves as a divider between the den and the kitchen, hanging cabnets above the counter provide additional storage space. A group of Dog Prints above the cabinets lend a decorative note.

The interior has been nicely divided to place the sleeping quarters in a quieter area to the rear of the house. A Pine paneled hall provides traffic circulation for this wing. A Cedar lined closet incorporated in a side wall, and a deep closet at the end of the hall solves storage problems. The ceiling is of acoustic tile, the floor is Ivory Vinyl. A door to the left of this hall gives access to the extremely large bathroom, which includes a floor-to-ceiling linen closet with sliding doors, a stall shower with translucent doors, and a long built-in vanity with twin basins affording double convenience. Individual, miniature compartments with sliding doors are incorporated in the wall just above the vanity. The vanity is surmounted by a full-width mirror. The Ceramic Tile walls are Nile Green, the vanity top is a marbleized pattern of Green and White. The Ceramic Tile floor is in a mosaic pattern featuring pastel shades set in a background of White. The fixtures are Sunrise Yellow.

Four large bedrooms comprise the sleeping area, two on the left of the hall, and two on the right. Each have two exposures, a full wall of closet space with sliding doors, and highly polished Oak floors. The color scheme for the bedrooms has been carefully chosen to harmonize. . . . Bedroom No. 1 has walls of a Flamingo shade offset by a White ceiling. An attractive built-in dressing table is an added convenience. . . . Bedroom No. 2 features walls in a Sandalwood shade with ceiling of White for contrast. A built-in desk is a practical feature of this room. . . . For Bedroom No. 3, Sandalwood walls and a White ceiling have been repeated. An ingenious free-standing storage wall covered with perforated hardboard, painted Rose-Geranium, divides this large bedroom into two rooms. Shared by two youngsters, the shelves provide storage for books, etc., the attached counter becomes two private desks. . . . Bedroom No. 4, or the Master Bedroom, is a suite with its own completely private bathroom, which includes a stall shower. Ming Blue has been chosen for the walls of the bedroom, a White ceiling offers effective contrast. The walls of the private bathroom are surfaced with White Ceramic Tile, four inch Tiles in shades of Pink, Rose, Green, Yellow, Grey and Blue placed in an unstereotyped pattern against the White field create distinctive decor. The interesting pattern is repeated in the White Tile floor. The fixtures are Cerelan Blue.

Literally, the hub of the house, the kitchen has visual access to the den over the snack-counter. The workspace in this homemaking center is well laid out with all appliances close at hand. Myriad details were devised to contribute beauty and practicality . . . a built-in wall oven, a surface range with ventilating hood, casement windows overhanging the sink, supplemented by a window on the opposite side of the room for the provision of ample light. . . . A planning desk surmounted by corner Bric-A-Brac shelves. . . . Fruitwood cabinets enhanced by Antique Hammered Brass hardware, particularly worthy of note is a convenient portable base cabinet of matching Fruitwood, topped with a chopping block. . . . Fruitwood valances with scalloped edges. Countertops of White Spungold Formica featuring splash panels. . . . An acoustical tile ceiling with fluorescent light fixtures incorporated. The floor is an Ivory Tessera Vinyl Corlon. . . . Additional charm is provided by a Turquoise and Pink Medallion Print wallpaper on the walls and the soffit. Extra space has been assigned to the kitchen, so that the entire family can dine there comfortably and informally. An adjustable Brass lighting fixture above the dining table adds a decorative note. Another practical feature of the kitchen is a floor-to-ceiling closet with sliding doors to accommodate family wraps.

From the dining area, a door opens to a landing outlined by ornamental iron work, an iron bannister provides a safety measure for the steps leading down to the rear patio. A walk leads from the patio to a White framed kennell. There is also a door from the kitchen to the double carport, which features a full wall of storage cabinets. It has a poured concrete floor. The carport can also serve as a sheltered play area. Direct entrance to the basement may be gained from outside the house. The basement is equipped with a full bath, and affords potential space which can be divided to meet family requirements.

the proposed Parking Meter Rate Hike to TEN CENTS per hour for the meters on the Public Square.

WE FEEL THAT:

1. The increase in rate will not provide for greater availability of parking spaces on the Square.

2. As our trading area is essentially agricultural we do not wish to antagonize our customers or deter them from trading in Jacksonville.

3. Any decrease in customer traffic and retail sales volume, due to an increase in parking rates, would adversely affect the income for the City of Jacksonville since the City derives its greatest portion of income from the Sales Tax.

4. It is not fair to penalize the large majority of shoppers who spend their money in Jacksonville in order to punish a small minority of individuals who use the parking spaces unwisely.

New York Stock Exchange Is Backbone Of Financial America

The trading floor of the New York Stock Exchange, where the buy and sell orders of investors are executed. At each of the trading posts the specialist in a particular stock is present throughout the trading day to bring buyers and sellers together and assure an orderly market.

In an area roughly half the size of a football field, some 2,000 men work daily to carry out the dictates of America's 12,000,000 investors.

Housed in the 17-story Exchange building, in the center of the financial district, this is the market place for shares of 1,116 of the nation's biggest and best-known corporations.

The history of the market is one of sporadic growth. Entwined in its story are the men and events that shaped the United States. Explorations, inventions, earthquakes and wars have all left their mark on the ticker tape which measures the daily pulse of the market.

Early Beginning

The market began with two dozen men who met regularly under a buttonwood tree in lower New York to deal in government bonds. In 1792 they agreed to trade amongst themselves and charge their customers a fixed commission. From this grew the Exchange that now boasts 1,366 members and employes an equal number of people to run it. The following year, the Exchange moved indoors to the Tontine Coffee House and has remained under a roof ever since, occupying its present site in 1865.

In contrast, the American Stock Exchange, second largest, remained outdoors until 1921. Thanks to its early preference for fresh air, it was known until 1953 as the "Curb Exchange." During its existence it provided a colorful spectacle with trading done by hand signals and orders relayed to brokers by shouts and whistles from offices in adjoining buildings.

First Railroad Stock

An event of great impact on the Exchange occurred in 1829 when the Baltimore and Ohio became the first railroad to incorporate. For the first time, industry turned to the investor for financing. The rise of the large investor class had begun.

The market, previously limited to trading in canal and toll-road securities, now served as the means to feed the insatiable appetite of railroads and other industries for capital.

The era introduced shrewd and brilliant men, like Vanderbilt, to the market. Not all, however, were above dubious methods. By manipulating stocks, Jim Fisk, Jay Gould and Daniel Drew combined to reap a fortune. In the process they ruined a railroad and caused the panic thereafter known as the "black Friday of 1869."

The era also brought Henry Varnum Poor who, after helping to build railroads in Maine, became a financial editor dedicated to informing the investor. Today an army of researchers, statisticians and writers follow in his footsteps, many from Standard and Poor's Corporation, of which he was the founder.

The Exchange of the 1800's bore little resemblance to today's crowded trading floor. Members sat once a day while a list of the stocks was read. In 1871 the roll call gave way to the continuous trading currently practiced. The chairs also vanished, but the name "seat" remains to designate membership.

Highly Regulated

Author and broker, Louis Engel, writing about the market in 1957, could state: "Probably no business in the world operates under more stringent regulation or with a stricter code of ethics— all designed for the protection of buyers and sellers."

This wasn't always the case. Until the early 1900's, the market was considered the private aren of the "big boys." Tradition held that Wall Street operations were a private game of chance where anything went.

By the 1920's the market was the playground of the public. Millions of shares could be bought on margin—with only a fraction of the purchase price paid in cash. Bellboys vied with tycoons in building financial empires, created mainly of paper.

Warnings of experts went unheeded, and in October 1929 the bubble burst.

As a result Federal and state governments imposed a host of corrective and regulatory laws. The Security and Exchange Commission follows market activities closely today and the Federal Reserve Board oversees margin buying.

The Exchange also used the 30's to clean house. Purchase of a seat, a practice begun in 1865, now entails careful screening by the Exchange's Board of Governors. These seats, extremely valuable because only members are allowed on the trading floors to represent investors, currently sell for about $160,000 apiece, compared with the original price of $6,750. If you think this is high, consider the $625,000 paid in 1929 for membership.

Subject to similar scrutiny are companies who wish to list securities on the big board. Prerequisites are minimum net earnings of $1,000,000, minimum of 400,000 shares of common stock outstanding, and a minimum of 1,500 stockholders. American Telephone and Telegraph holds top spot with a total of 1,400,000 shareholders.

Change In Character

This last figure underscores the change in the general character of the market. In the present market, the investor is dominant, with the speculator usually an informed professional, relegated to a minor but vital role. One out of eight adult Americans owns stock listed on the New York Stock Exchange. A far cry from tycoons of the past, these investors have an average income of $7,000 a year.

Despite changes, the market clings to old customs and language. "Bulls" expect stocks to go up; "bears" expect them to go down. The terms trace back to days when manipulators forced the market in the direction they wished and treated their victims as did the animal counterparts, tossing them up or crushing them down.

No matter what the changes, would-be millionaires and ordinory investors continue to approach the market with the same old question—"Is it going up or down?" No answer has ever topped J. P. Morgan's, "It will fluctuate."

Annual Pontiac Threshermen's Days Sept. 1-5

PONTIAC, Ill.—Plans to hold the 12th annual Threshermen's Reunion Sept. 1 through 5 in beautiful 4-H Park here were announced this week by Reunion President Amer W. Cook, Washington, Ill.

"This promises to be one of our most interesting and colorful reunions by far," Mr. Cook said. "In addition to all sizes and makes of steam engines, threshing machines, and saw mills, hundreds of antique cars will participate in this year's show.

Steam engine demonstrations, testing and contests, which will be going on all day and evening, will have old-timers at the throttles who once had their own steam threshing runs back in the 20's.

Not to be outdone, the wives of these steam engine enthusiasts have their own hobby and antique show during the Reunion. The women's "Old Country Store" and "One-room School" exhibits are especially interesting. Visitors watch with fascination as Mrs. Gordon Collins of Pontiac, weaves multi-colored rugs on an ancient rug loom.

Illinois Farmers Outlook Letter

CATTLE PRICE OUTLOOK BETTER

The outlook for cattle prices seems to be improving, especially in the corn belt. This conclusion is drawn mainly from a study of the important quarterly report of cattle (including calves) on feed July 1, which was recently released in Washington.

As of July 1, farmers in 21 reporting states were feeding 5,376,000 head of cattle, only 4 per cent more than the year before. Most of this increase was in California and other western states. Farmers in 13 north-central (corn-belt) states were feeding 3,719,000 cattle, only 1 per cent more (this percentage is not exact). Cattlemen in 8 western states were feeding 1,657,000 head, or 11 per cent more.

Slightly More Heifers

The increase in cattle on feed was about equally divided between steers and heifers, but the proportion of heifers to steers has increased. Heifers made up 29 per cent of the total this year compared with 28 per cent the year before. Steers made up 70 per cent this year and 71 per cent a year ago. Cows and other "critters" accounted for 1 per cent in both years.

Most of the increase in steer numbers was in the 500- to 700-pound range. This year 15 per cent were in this weight group compared with 12 per cent last year. The 700- to 900-pound group included 39 per cent of all steers this year and 41 per cent last year. Proportions of steers in other weight groups were unchanged. About 3 per cent weighed under 500 pounds; 32 per cent, 900 to 1,100 pounds; and 11 per cent, over 1,100 pounds.

Most of the increase in heifers on feed was also in the 500- to 700-pound range. There were smaller increases in numbers of heifers weighing under 500 pounds and over 900 pounds. There was a moderate reduction in the group weighing 700 to 900 pounds. Proportions of heifers in the various weight ranges were: under 500 pounds, 5 per cent; 500 to 700 pounds, 35 per cent; 700 to 900 pounds, 51 per cent; and 900 to 1,100 pounds, 9 per cent.

The government report indicated that farmers in 21 states would sell about 3,118,000 head of cattle from July through September. This is 6 per cent more than last year. If sales come up to expectations,, the number remaining for market after October 1 will be only 1 per cent larger than in 1959.

The foregoing report on marketings applies only to cattle on feed July 1. Some cattle put on feed after July 1 will be marketed before the year end.

Off Of Grass

Another point to remember is that fed cattle provide only 60 to 65 per cent of our beef. The other 35 to 40 per cent, which grades lower than Good, comes from cows and other cattle sold without a feeding-fattening period. Marketings of non-fed cattle always increase moderately in this stage of the cattle cycle.

To sum up this situation: marketings of fed cattle will be only a little larger during the remainder of this year than last year. The increased supply of cattle may be sold without much further price decline because the supply of pork will be very short and consumers will have a record amount of buying power.

LESS CORN, MORE BEAN ACREAGE

U. S. farmers planted 83,680,000 acres of corn this year. 800,000 acres less than last. They put in 24,430.000 acres of soybeans, almost 1,000,000 more than last year.

IT TAKES LONGER THAN YOU THINK!

At 70 miles per hour it takes 532 feet to stop a car on dry pavement. A "rule of the road" is to keep at least 1 car length behind the car ahead for every 10 miles of speed.

SWEET TOOTH

Farm Wagon, Highway Use Law Clarified

Attorney General William L. Guild last week wrote an opinion clarifying the license status of farm wagons, trailers and similar vehicles pulled behind a pick-up truck or licensed motor vehicle.

The opinion was requested the William J. Kuhfuss, president of the Illinois Agriculture association at the behest of the Morgan County Farm Bureau. The local action followed incidents where Morgan county farmers were ticketed by state police for pulling farm wagons on the highway with a jeep and a pickup truck.

At that time the ruling was that a farm wagon must carry a license tag unless it was drawn by "an implement of husbandry," such as a tractor, or horses, which do not require licenses. Guild clarified the law by ruling that a pickup truck or a jeep, even though they must be licensed, are to be considered an implement of husbandry when they are used for agricultural purposes and the vehicles being towed are exempt from the provisions of the licensing law.

However, the opinion stated, a wagon trailer towed behind a licensed vehicle for a non-agricultural purpose would not be exempt from the licensing provisions.

He's A Careful Political Strategist, But The Biggest Boost To His Well-Laid Plans Came Out Of Khrushchev's Sour Mood. Here's The Story Of RICHARD NIXON'S HAPPY ACCIDENT

EDITOR'S NOTE: Newspaper Enterprise political reporter Bruce Biossat has covered the ups and downs of Richard Nixon's career for eight years. He watched his campaign for the GOP presidential nomination develop in the carefully planned way the Vice President had outlined to him in the spring of 1959. But there were developments that no one could plan for. Here, based on exclusive talks with the GOP nominee and his staff, is the inside story of how planned strategy and happy accident were combined for victory.

By BRUCE BIOSSAT
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

CHICAGO —(NEA)— On the morning of July 24, a year before the Republican convention, Vice President Nixon marched into Soviet Premier Khrushchev's quiet Kremlin office to pay a duty call. No one looked for anything beyond the routine.

What happened there is little known. The formalities quickly over, Khrushchev startled Nixon by unleashing a terrific tirade against America. He set the combative tone for a now famous day and put the Vice President instantly on his mettle.

The events that followed were fully told. Nixon, squiring Khrushchev around our fair grounds in Moscow, fell into a running battle that became one of the great impromptu encounters of modern times.

The climax came when the two free swingers stood chest to chest in the kitchen of our model home exhibit and rained verbal blows at each other on a wide range of issues. Says a Nixon man today:

"If there was one hour in this whole campaign that was make or break for us, that was it. With a hundred American newsmen looking on, we'd have been finished if the Vice President hadn't stood up."

But he did stand up—and he gained mightily as a presidential prospect. Thus it was the accident of Khrushchev's sour midsummer mood, the product of many things, that gave Nixon, the careful planner, his unplanned great moment.

What counted was that he was ready for his break, as he was for other surprises which now and then altered his beautifully managed campaign. Let's look closely both at the well executed strategies and the surprises.

Many politicians and observers say Nixon had a breeze. The evidence suggests, however, that Nixon himself was cranking the wind machine. If his Democratic opponent, Sen. John F. Kennedy, campaigned for four years, then the Vice President has campaigned for eight.

He did it in many ways: by sticking to his job, winning broad responsibilities, building an image of himself as an experienced leader privy to high policy and equipped to deal with vital foreign affairs.

Most of all, he piled up huge credit with the party for untiring service through difficult national campaigns. Notes one professional:

"You don't carry water all those years without benefit. The Vice President built an enormous equity for himself. That's what Governor Rockefeller ran into when he went around the country last fall."

One well traveled Republican says flatly that two-thirds of the GOP rank and file were always for Nixon and an even bigger share of the professionals.

"He never had to build an organization of his own. Practically every place in the country, THE organizations were for him."

"I thought Governor Dewey was a hard worker, but this man is the hardest worker I've ever seen. If he pops awake at night, he's up and jotting things down.

"And he reads, reads, reads. He's got a library mind. He just flips a card, and out it comes. He's got one foot in the intelligentsia and the other in precinct politics."

A Nixon staff man adds:

This reporter sat with the Vice President in his historic Senate office last year—before his Soviet tour—and heard him lay down the broad lines of his strategy.

With the same kind of cool, unruffled detachment Kennedy exhibits in appraising politics, Nixon indicated his intent not to press too hard too soon. To him timing is the essence.

He talked candidly of traveling the delicate path—holding to the record built by President Eisenhower yet finding ways to strike out on his own. He said he'd be "clobbered" if he took any other course.

He spoke with calm confidence. Two months later, after the Russian visit, his fortunes were soaring. But six months earlier they had seemed at low ebb.

November, 1958, was a debacle for the Republicans nationally, and particularly in Nixon's own California, where a Senate seat and the governorship slipped beneath the Democratic tide.

Soon afterward, Nixon and such of his stalwarts as Leonard Hall, former national chairman and Robert Finch, gathered for a "rest" at Key Biscayne, a fat little island just off the Miami mainland shore. Says one of those present:

"Everybody was down. We'd been slapped hard in California and the results generally were black.

"We discussed what to do. The Vice President never said in so many words that he'd run in 1960. But Len talked of plans. And others, sensing that Nixon probably would make the race, made their commitments right there to stay with him and start building."

By January it was clear to all his people that he was in the fight. And they, like he, thought it would be just that. For they assumed Rockefeller, the bright star of the 1958 elections, would be ranged against them.

Mrs. R. Dawson Feted Thursday By Bridge Club

ROODHOUSE—On Thursday evening Mrs. Jack Alred was hostess to her bridge club honoring a visitor and friend of the members, Mrs. Robert J. Dawson, Glasgow, Scotland. She is the former Kathleen Morrow of White Hall.

Others present besides the hostess and the guest of honor were Mrs. Paul Morrow, Mrs. Marvin Early, Mrs. Robert McCollister, Mrs. Lavon Guis, Mrs. Darrell Mansfield, White Hall; Mrs. George Fundel and Mrs. Raymond Watkins, Roodhouse.

Story Hour

Seventy-four children between the ages of four and eight attended the last session of the series of weekly story hour periods held at the Roodhouse Public library Wednesday afternoon. The children received souvenir booklets from Mrs. Grover Wallace, who served as story teller during the month of July, and treats from the librarian, Mrs. Charles McIver, who was assisted by Anne Russell.

Rotary Club

Paul Findley, newspaperman from Pittsfield, spoke on the subject, "The Greatest Invention," before the local Rotary Club Wednesday night. He was introduced by program chairman Jerry Hagen.

Jack Jordan, an officer in the club who is moving soon to Dixon, was accorded special recognition and given a farewell talk in appreciation of his contributions to the club and to the community in general, by the president of Rotary, Carl McAdams.

Introduced to the members was the new superintendent of schools, Russell Ward, Danvers, who will move to Roodhouse shortly.

Roodhouse Notes

A dinner was served Wednesday night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Alred celebrating the birthday anniversary of one of the guests, George Fundel, which fell on that date, and the thirteenth wedding anniversary of the Alreds, which occurred on Tuesday.

Floyd Yeager, Owner Of Speedway, Dies In Racing Accident

Floyd Yeager, 38-year-old racing car driver and owner of the Pittsfield Speedway, was fatally injured Friday in an accident during the final event of the day at the Scotland County Fair in Memphis, Mo. Yeager was rushed immediately to a hospital in Bloomfield, Iowa, where he was pronounced dead on arrival.

The former operator of the Jacksonville speedway was driving a Sprint car in an Australian Pursuit race on the half-mile dirt track at the time of the accident. According to reports from the speedway Yeager had begun the race in fifth position and had advanced to third as he entered the north turn on the fourth lap of the race. A rear axle apparently broke causing the auto to overturn.

Sonny Hulmes, another driver who was behind the Yeager car, told authorities a rear wheel on the Yeager auto appeared to collapse. From his position it looked as if Yeager was thrown into the seat out of reach of the steering wheel. He was wearing a safety belt and was not thrown from the car.

The auto flipped over sideways and then end over end before plunging over the side of the banked curve.

The body will be returned to Pittsfield by the Plattner Funeral Home.

Floyd Yeager was the owner and operator of the Floyd Jewelry Store in Pittsfield, the Pittsfield Speedway, and for two seasons in 1958 and 1959 operated the racing program at the Morgan County fair grounds.

He was born in Pittsfield, June 20, 1922, and was the son of Jesse and Esther Norton Yeager, both of whom survive. He is also survived by his wife, the former Annabelle Dolbeare, and four children—Jane, 10, Roger, 17, Scott, 13, and Chuckie, 5. Scott was present in the grandstand when the fatal accident occurred.

Mr. Yeager was active in numerous organizations. He was a member of the Rotary Club, a 32nd Degree Mason, and a Shriner.

Funeral services will be held at 2:30 p.m. Monday at Plattner funeral home with interment to be held in Pittsfield West cemetery.

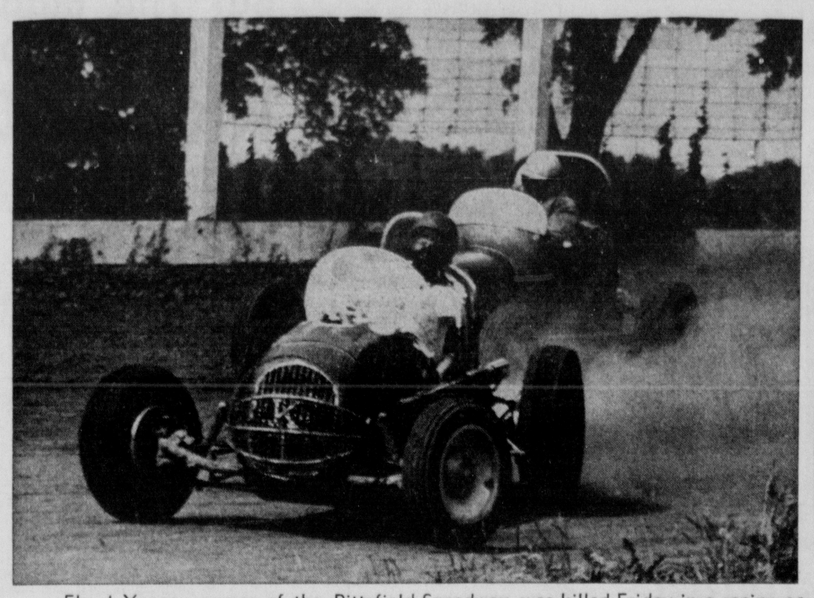
KILLED IN RACING ACCIDENT



Floyd Yeager, owner of the Pittsfield Speedway, was killed Friday in a racing accident in Memphis, Mo. Yeager is shown here in the auto in which he met his death, a Chevrolet V-8 Sprint, which he recently purchased from Arnold Knepper. The above photograph was taken June 19 when Yeager made his first Sprint car appearance at the Morgan County Fairgrounds.

When Jennifer returned, her lips were set, her eyes narrow and hard. She waved a peremptory hand at Artemus.

"Something I must attend to," she said.

Artemus stared after her. It had been a brief episode, but revealing. In that instant as she left him so abruptly, so curtly, he had seen a different person. In that instant he had seen a cold, determined woman of quick decisions. In her smoldering eyes he had read ruthlessness, power to deal with emergencies.

Afterward he walked, still deep in thought, to his motel, where, clipped to the door, he found a slip on which was written a telephone number. He called it. It was the number of the Roche residence, in Paradise Valley. It was Jick's voice that answered.

"Can you come out at once?" she asked without preamble.

"Has something happened?" he asked.

"Something has happened," she said.

In little more than 20 minutes he was at the Roches' door. Jick stood waiting on the porch.

"Come in," she said briskly.

Mrs. Roche, crisp, as young in appearance as her daughter, but worried now, with darkness under her fine eyes.

"Mr. Baldwin," she said, voice steady, "Pomfret Lionel is lost. That is not all. Last night this house was ransacked. Nita has disappeared. My husband thinks she was taken away."

"My son," said Mrs. Roche, "had gone on a hike with his Boy Scout troop. They were going to camp. When they arrived at the campsite, Pomfret Lionel was missing."

"And," said Jick, "there was blood on the kitchen floor. Not much blood. Just drops. Nita did not go willingly." Her voice was hostile. "It's all on account of that box of counterfeit notes," she said. "And what are you going to do about it?"

"The boy," he said, "will be the first order of business."

* * *

Mr. Roche came into the living room. He showed no traces of anxiety at the disappearance of his son. He was as gusty as usual. "Good day to you, Baldwin," he said. "Calc-late to be helpful?"

"I sent for him," Jick said.

"My son," said Mr. Roche, "is a great fist for obeying the letter of the law. Yeah. But for seeking out places where there is no printing. Like, f'rinstance, I gave specific directions he wan't to go snoopin' in Phoenix. He minded me. Could be I didn't take in enough territory. He wouldn't consider snoopin' in Paradise Valley as covered by the original injunction."

"Leading to what conclusion?" Artemus asked.

"Leadin' to the conclusion," Mr. Roche said, "that if it wasn't possible for some rapscallion to snatch Pomfret Lionel out of the bosom of that troop of Boy Scouts, he contrived to Injun himself out."

"So," Artemus said thoughtfully, "you conclude that Pomfret Lionel eloped from the troop and that he was not removed from it?"

"Yup," said Mr. Roche. "And the ensuing conclusion is that he's lurking in the bushes to carry out this project, whatever it is, or else he's been caught at it by the folks he was aiming to snoop into."

"Mr. Roche," he said, "you have puzzled me. Have you any official connection with the Government?"

"Nary," Mr. Roche said promptly. "Just exercised a helpful curiosity two, three times. Strictly for my own amusement."

* * *

Artemus nodded and went off on a tangent of his own. "Would you like," he asked, "to discuss borzoi dogs?"

"I so do," Mr. Roche replied. "In Marseilles the girl with the borzoi was a young millionaire widow from Montevideo by the name of Iturbe. In Paris she was a Canadian from Toronto named Dubois. In London she was what they call a socialite from San Francisco named Carroll."

"No father who was the flower of Southern chivalry?"

"Nary father," said Mr. Roche. "You're getting away from Pomfret Lionel," Jick objected.

Mr. Roche cleared his throat. "Ever notice thumbs?" he asked. "Interesting digits."

"A pricked thumbnail," Artemus explained, "is one of the stigmata of a certain profession."

"Stigmata jigmata," Jick said crossly. "Stigmata are what saints have on their palms, aren't they? Are we bringing saints into this rigamajig?"

"That," Artemus said, "is the thing that first interested me in Bayside."

"But he etches," she objected. "Etching could be an almighty handy blind," said her father.

"I think," Artemus said gravely, "that at last they have made the mistake. We always hope for a mistake. I think someone lost his head."

"Could be," said Mr. Roche.

Jick was on her feet, eyes bright with determination. "What are we waiting for?" she demanded. "Let's go."

BY OSWALD JACOBY
Written for Newspaper Enterprises Assn.

In general, when you are playing no-trump and the opponents open a suit in which your only stopper is the ace it will pay you to hold off as long as possible if you have to let the opponents regain the lead quickly.

One exception is when there is another suit that appears to be equally or even more dangerous. Another exception is shown today.

West opens the five spades against your normal three no-trump contract. Assuming that West is one of those players who is not inclined to open a short suit against no-trump you should go right on with dummy's ace of clubs. This play ensures your contract unless West had opened the spade five spot from a five card suit headed by king-queen-jack. Such lead is so unusual that I have never seen it although someone may lead it against me some day. (Almost everything else possible has happened to me.

The way the cards lie, West gets the lead with the ace of clubs and the best he can do is to take two quick spade tricks. But if you ducked the first spade lead East would win with the queen and return the suit. You would have to play dummy's ace and then the rest of West's spades would be good cards.

Auto Damaged At City Intersection Friday Afternoon

An auto driven by Earl Floreth, route 4, Jacksonville, was damaged in an accident at the intersection of Lafayette and Prairie at 2:18 p.m. Friday. The other vehicle, a pick-up truck driven by Mike W. Bell, route 1, Bluffs, was not damaged.

Both vehicles were headed west on West Lafayette. The truck was in front of the Floreth auto. Both had stopped for the stop sign at the intersection, when Bell started backing the truck and hit the Floreth auto.

Bell stated that he was backing the truck to avoid being hit by an auto coming through the intersection.

4-H Club, Home Bureau Unit Hold Joint Meeting

The Chapin Top Notchers Girls' 4-H Club held their local Achievement Day meeting as a combined meeting with the Cheerful Home Bureau Unit at the Chapin High school on Friday afternoon with a large group in attendance.

The 4-H members entered the gymnasium and were preceded in line by the club president and the American flag and 4-H flag bearers, Judy Putnam and Mary Rae LaKamp, with Shirley Fricke at the piano.

Mrs. Andrew Detmer, Home Bureau Unit chairman, called the meeting to order. Lavona Schone led the pledge of allegiance. Mrs. Detmer gave a most warm and cordial welcome to all in attendance. The response was given by the 4-H vice president, Marilyn Schumacher.

Mrs. Miller Obert called the roll of the Home Bureau members. Mary Rae LaKamp called the roll of the 4-H members and Phyllis Wilder called the roll of the 4-H mothers. At the roll call of Home Bureau members, each member was presented a blue artificial carnation corsage by the acting 4-H president.

At the roll call of 4-H mothers, each mother was presented a pink carnation corsage by her 4-H daughter. All 4-H members wore white carnation corsages. The corsages were made by Mrs. Russell Werries, and the 4-H leaders, Mrs. R. R. Long and Mrs. Louis Werries. All guests were given a corsage also.

Mrs. Detmer presented Mrs. Wendell Middendorf, who presented the minor unit lesson, "Flag Etiquette" which was very informative and interesting. With Mrs. Tillie Schone at the piano, the group sang "America, the Beautiful."

Marilyn Schumacher presided over the 4-H program which was as follows: Demonstrations, "Sail Boat Sandwiches," Phyllis Wilder; "How to Set a Table Correctly," Sarah Joy; "Choosing Cloth to Suit Your Pattern," Judy Hamilton.

Talks, "Highlightsof My Chicago Trip as a State 4-H Electricity Award," Carol Anderson; "I Pledge My Head to Clearer Thinking," Marilyn Schumacher; "Highlights of Our Club's Yearly Activities," Gloria Fisher. Treasurer's report, Phyllis Wilder.

The 4-H group presented their 4-H Share-the-Fun contest stunt. The 4-H clothing members modeled their garments in the style show with Karen Smith and Carol Anderson serving as commentators. The foods members presented a "Parade of Foods," with Phyllis Wilder serving as commentator, assisted by Linda Weeks and Gloria Fisher.

The baby sitting members, Mary Rae LaKamp and Gayle Rigor, strolled across the stage with a doll in a stroller to represent their project. Shirley Fricke served as pianist accompanist for all showings. The program closed with the members giving the 4-H club pledge.

Mrs. Alfred Rahe presented the members 4-H pins for their respective year as a token from the Home Bureau Unit. Marilyn Schumacher responded with a thank you and deep appreciation from the 4-H members. She also presented a gift to the leaders, Mrs. Long and Mrs. Werries, in behalf of the 4-H members in appreciation for the leaders' services and help. Mrs. Long and Mrs. Werries each gave a brief response of thanks and appreciation. They also presented each 4-H member with a gift and a blue ribbon award for completion of projects.

After the close of the afternoon program those present all enjoyed refreshments from a pretty appointed table. The Home Bureau Unit served punch and mints and the 4-H members served assorted cookies.

Projects were on exhibit during the afternoon. After the Achievement program, members arranged a window exhibit of all their projects in Onkens Store in Chapin.
